PREFACE.

IN bringing to a completion the Fifth Volume of The Northern Genealogist, I have to thank several subscribers who have assisted me with contributions and by presenting illustrations.

Our increasing subscription list, and the appreciative notices vouchsafed by the Press, encourage me to persevere in the rather onerous work of bringing out the magazine.

THE NEW ROYAL BANNER NOW HUNG IN S. GEORGE'S CHAPEL AT WINDSOR.

For the very fine photographic reproduction of this splendid work of art, which appears as the frontispiece of the present Volume, we are indebted to the generosity of a subscriber who wishes to remain unknown, and who expresses a hope that "other subscribers will help to enliven the pages of THE NORTHERN GENEALOGIST with suitable illustrations."

We are also much indebted to The Nineteen Hundred Publishing Syndicate, Limited, Proprietors of The Sphere, for their kindness in not merely granting permission to reproduce the illustration which appeared in that Magazine on the 2nd of November, 1901, but in entrusting our printers with the photographic negative, without which a satisfactory result would have been impossible.

The banner, which the King as Sovereign of the Most Noble Order of the Garter places in the Chapel of that illustrious body at Windsor, has been constructed at the Royal School of Art Needlework, South Kensington, from the richest velvets and cloth of gold, and as our readers may see for themselves, in a style of Heraldic Art which is at once vigorous and dignified. The lions of England in the first and fourth quarters are modelled from those on the shield in Westminster Abbey, of Prince John of Eltham. He was, it will be remembered, a brother of Edward III., and even in those days of magnificent heraldic art, his superb monument in Westminster Abbey was in that respect unsurpassed by anything of the kind in England. The combination of attenuated lissomeness, with immense strength displayed by these lions is truly wonderful; while more massive, and scarcely less muscular, the "ruddy lion" of Scotland is grandly designed. In the third quarter the ancient harp of Ireland appears in its true and primitive form; the ridiculous female head hitherto affixed to it has disappeared, we trust, for ever.

Our illustration fails, of course, to give the tinctures; but we understand that the heraldic colours and gold have been so treated as to produce a beautifully harmonious effect.

His Majesty may be congratulated on the acquisition of a very regal and beautiful banner; the School of Needlework deserves praise for the skill with which the work has been produced; and we cannot but rejoice that Heralds' College, in sanctioning the design, has shown a willingness to shake off the trammels of that debased heraldic art which has so long prevailed, and to welcome the new art which is in reality the old.

THE REDMAYNES OF LEVENS.

[By W. GREENWOOD, Esqr., Barrister-at-Law.]

I.—SIR HENRY DE REDMAN (son of Norman).

Although there may be material for interesting speculation as to the origin and very early history of the ancient family of Redman, its ascertained and reliable history appears to commence with the grant by Ketel, son of Uchtred, to Henry, son of Norman de Redman, of Levens, which was to become the principal seat of the family for several centuries.

By the Fine passed in 34 Hen. II. (1188), "Henricus, filius Normanni de Redeman, debet unam marcā ut finis, factus inter eum et Ketellum, filium Uchtredi, de terra de Levenes, recordetur in Curia Regis, de dominatione illius terrae, quam Ketellus concessit Henrico et heredibus suis; cujus medietatem Henricus tenebit in dominio suo; et Ketellus tenebit aliam medietatem de Henrico per idem servitium quod Henricus inde facit capitali domino (Mag. Rot. 34 Hen. II.).

Levens, or Lefuenes, as it was originally called, of which a moiety thus passed into the hands of Henry de Redman, formed, at the Conquest, part of the possessions of Tosti, Earl of Northumberland; and at the time of the Domesday survey belonged to Roger, of Poictou, a probable ancestor of Uchtred. (Nicholson and Burn, Vol. I. p. 202.)

The remaining property in Levens was secured to Henry de Redman by the following grant from Gilbert FitzRoger FitzReinfrid.

"Notum sit omnibus, tam presentibus quam futuris, quod ego Gilbertus, fil' Rogeri fil' Reinfredi, concessi et hac presenti carta mea confirmavi Henrico de Redman, quod ipse et heredes sui teneant Levenes et Selesete (Selside), cum pertinentiis, de me et heredibus meis in perpetuum." (Dodsworth's MS. 159 fo. 180.)

Gilbert FitzReinfrid, who had received Levens together with other large possessions in the North, by grant from King John, appears to have been on terms of close connection with the family of Redman. He shared with Henry de Redman the office of Sheriff of Yorkshire in the years 1211-14 (Dods. MS. 79 fo. 115); when, after taking up arms against King John and being reduced to submission, he received the Royal pardon, Benedict, son and heir of Henry de Redman, was one of the hostages provided for his NOTE.—I acknowledge, with much gratitude, the very valuable help I have received in preparing these papers from the writings of Sir George Duckett, Bart., and from my brother-in-law, J. Harper Scaife, Esqr., Barrister-at-Law, Dublin; to the latter of whom I am especially indebted for much useful material, which his painstaking researches have enabled me to make public.

future good conduct; and it has been stated, although perhaps on inadequate authority, that a marriage was arranged between him and Helen, niece of Henry de Redman.

With the possession of Levens, thus procured, begins the authentic period of Redmayne history, which as attested by innumerable evidences, was for at least four centuries one of growing and uninterrupted prosperity.

In the "Rotuli Chartarum in Turri Londiniensi asservati" we find a confirmation, in the 1st year of King John's reign, of a grant by Henry de Redman, to the Canons of Cartmel; and in the following year a confirmation to the church of St. Mary of Keldeholm—"ex dono Normanni de Redeman terra de Tranethern, cum omnibus pertinentiis suis." This Norman was possibly a brother of Henry and son of Norman, the first-known Redman.

On the evidence of the Rotuli de Finibus (p. 545) Henry (in 1214) gave the third part of ten marks for having a writ for his debt against Helweis de Estucoitt.

In 1215 Robert de Courtenay is commanded to keep Henry de Redman and others in safe custody; and, two years later, occurs a direction to the Sheriffs of Cumberland, Westmoreland and Lancashire to restore Henry de Redman to his possessions in these counties. (Rot. Lit. Claus. Turr. Lon. pp. 241 and 376.)

In 1206 we find (Rotuli de Finibus p. 335) that Henry de Redman "dat XL. marcas pro habenda custodia terrae et heredis Rogeri de Hedon, et pro habendo maritaggio ejusdem heredis ad opus filiae suae."

Among the many interesting papers in the possession of Colonel Bagot, of Levens Hall, are a grant by Gilbert, son of Robert to the Hospital of St. Peter at York, witnessed, amongst others, by Henry de Redman and Matthew his son; and a grant by Hugh and Ralph, sons of Robert of Sigg, to the monks of Byland of all the land in Kendal which they held of Henry de Redman. The date of this grant is circa 1195. (Hist. MSS. Commission, Report 10 part 4.)

In the 13th year of King John, Henry de Redman, Seneschal of Kendal, was witness to Robert de Veteripont's grant to the Abbey of Shap (Burn and Nicholson Vol. I. p. 203.); and, on the evidence of the Chartulary of this Abbey, he was also one of its benefactors:—"Sciant omnes quod ego, Henricus de Rademan, dedi domui S'cae Marie Magdalene de Hepp, et Abbati et canonicis ibidem Deo servientibus, pro salute animae meae, et uxoris meae, et omnium antecessorum meorum, in puram et perpetuam eleemosinam quandam partem terrae meae in Villa de Lupton." (Dods. MS. 159.)

Henry de Redman was also a benefactor to Furness Abbey:—

Henricus Redman concessu uxoris suae et haeredum suorum dat nobis redditum iiii. annuatim ad luminaria in ecclesia abbatae nostrae—scilicet iis. de Hornthorntwayte et xiid. de Middlethwayt—

The description of this gift, as given on p. 509, Vol. II. Furness Coucher Book (Chetham Soc.), is as follows:—

"Scilicet ii quos W(illielmus) filius Wa (l) theri, avunculi mei, mihi reddit pro terra de Herthorntwaite, quae fuit Adae avunculi mei. Scil xiid. ad Pascha et xii ad festum S. Michaelis et xii quos Gamellus, filius Levin, redxdit mihi pro terra de Middlethwayt. The date of this grant is given by Burn as 1212.

From the same authority we learn that Henry was a knight.

Of Benedict, who is described as son and heir of Henry, nothing appears to be recorded beyond the fact stated above, that he was one of the sureties provided by Gilbert FitzRoger FitzReinfrid. It is reasonable to assume that he died during his father's lifetime.

In the 6th Henry III. we find reference to another son of Henry in a direction to Philip, the Marshal, reciting that in the reign of King John, William of Lancaster, at the time of the rebellion, took with him from his parts Norman, son of Henry de Redeman, Richard, son of Roger de Kirkeby, and the son of William de Windsor as hostages for his redemption. Although these hostages were refused, Philip detained them at Nottingham, and is commanded to liberate them without delay. (Rot. Lit. claus p. 497.)

II.—MATTHEW DE REDMAN (the first).

In the Testa de Nevill (pp. 398 and 9) we find that Matthew de Redeman was a tenant (military knight) of the Barony of William of Lancaster, for lands in Yealand in the Lonsdale division of Lancashire. Together with Robert de Kymyers (Conyers) he held one-eighth of a knight's fee; and the individual holdings are still distinguished as Yealand Conyers and Yealand Redmayne. As we have seen this Matthew joined with his father in witnessing a deed of about 1195, he was probably then of age. His father last appears on record in 13 John (1211-1212), and we may therefore place Matthew's era as approximately from 1175 to 1245.

We learn from Dodsworth (159 fo. 180) that, in 1242, a fine was passed between Matthew de Redman and William de Lancaster, son and heir of Gilbert FitzRoger FitzReinfrid; and, on the evidence of Nicholson and Burn, "Matthew de Redman, Seneschal of Kendal, was witness to a confirmation of a grant of lands at Preston, Holme and Hutton, by William de Lancaster, the Third, to Patric, son of Thomas, son of Gospatric. In company with William de Lancaster, Robert de Lathum and John de Mara he also affixed his seal to the release of the right of patronage of Eccleston church, from Warinus de Waleton to the Abbey of Sees and the Priory of Lancaster; and together with Walter de Strickland, Alan le Boteiler and others, he witnessed the grant by Thomas de Hastings to the Hospital of St. Peter at York. (Hist. MSS. Commn., Report 10 part 4.)

He seems to be the first of the family who appears in connection with Yealand. He was evidently succeeded at Levens and Yealand by

III.—HENRY DE REDMAN (the second).

Judging by dates there can be little doubt that this Henry was the son and heir of Matthew. Henry has no place in any published pedigrees I have seen, but there can be no doubt of his existence, for in 51 Henry III. (1266-7), there was a grant to Henry de Redman of free warren in his demesne lands in Levens, Yealand and Trenterne (Dodsworth

MS. 159 fo. 181). This Henry, besides his undoubted son and heir Matthew, probably had issue:—

HENRY DE REDMAN, who as "Henry son of Henry de Redman" is mentioned in a Chartulary of Cokersand Abbey dated about 1300, as among the donors of land to the Abbey, Roger de Yeland being another.* In the roll† of Humphrey de Bohun, Earl of Essex and Hereford and Constable of England, of military tenants who proffered service against the Scots, we find that John Baron of Greystock acknowledges and offers the service of two-and-a-half Knight's Fees discharged by Henry Redman and others. (Palgrave's Documents illustrating the affairs of Scotland p. 209.)

Henry possibly also was father of THOMAS DE REDMAN who appears in an Inquisition post mortem of 35 Edw. I. as one of the heirs of Alan de Camberton, mention being made "de hereditate Thomae de Redman et Johannis le Venour consanguineorum et heredum predicti Alani."

If this were so, it is plain that Henry de Redman (the second) must have married a second wife a coheirss of Camberton.

IV.—MATTHEW DE REDMAN (the second).

This Matthew was also of Levens, Yealand, and Trenterne, for in 1291 Matthew de Redeman was called upon to answer to the King "quo warranto clamat habere liberam warennam" in Levens, Yealand and Trenterne; whereupon he produced the grant to his father, of 51 Henry III. "per quam concessit Henrico de Redeman, patri ejusdem Mathaei, cujus heres ipse est, quod ipse et heredes sui imperpetuum habeant liberam warennam in omnibus dominicis terris suis de Levenes, Yeland et Trenterne in Com' Lanc' et Westmoreland." (Placita de quo warranto, 20 Edw. I.).

With this second Sir Matthew, we reach a stirring epoch in the family story, which now becomes actively identified with the making of history. In accordance with probabilities we should expect his death to occur about 1300-10, but as he was apparently succeeded by a son who was also named Matthew, it is impossible to speak with certainty. It is even possible that he survived until about 1327, in which year Adam de Redman is found in possession of Yealand. Matthew de Redman (the second) thus appears to have had the following issue:—

1. MATTHEW DE REDMAN (the third) his son and heir. There seems to be no direct proof of this, but there can be no doubt of it, seeing that during the fourteenth century there was a succession of Matthews constantly appearing on record, each evidently head of the family, and it is certain that Levens remained in the family down to the fifteenth and sixteenth centuries.

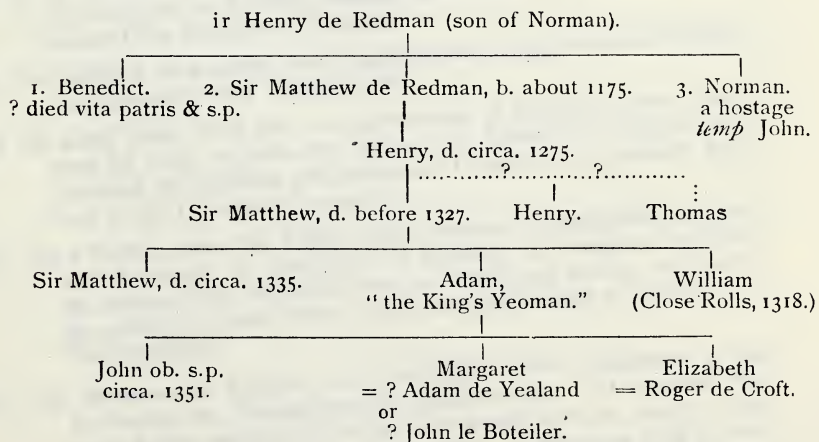

* Strickland M.SS.—Report of Historical M.SS. Commissioners No. 10, Appendix † Dated A.D. 1300.

2. ADAM DE REDMAN who succeeded to the estate of Yealand. In 1327 he had a grant of free-warren in his lands of Yealand (*); he also had a grant for life of the custody of lands in Tibbaye and Ronnerthwayte (†); and in 20 Edw. III., an order to pay him 100 marks (‡). He was succeeded by his son and heir John de Redman of Yealand, whose Inq. p.m. was taken in 24 Edw. III. (1340-1), when his heirs were found to be his two sisters of whom one, in 1351, was the wife of Roger de Croft and the other, Margaret, was unmarried. This is as far as the known evidence carries us (Abb. Rot. Orig. Vol. II.) though Whitaker says (in his "Richmondshire") that Margaret married Adam de Yealand and Elizabeth married Roger de Croft and died without issue. On the other hand the editor of "Townley's Lancashire Inquisitions" (Vol. I. p. 141) says that Margaret married John le Boteiler and made a settlement out of the inheritance of her mother Elena on John le Boteiler and his daughter Elena—that this Elena married Nicholas de Croft who was aged 30 in 1420. Adam de Redman is mentioned as a King's Yeoman on the Close Rolls 11 Edw. II., 30 Aug. 20 Edw. III.

3. WILLIAM DE REDMAN—mentioned in the Close Roll of 1318.

As stated above, Sir Matthew (the second) was evidently alive and in possession of his estates in 1291, after which date it is impossible, at any rate until 1327, when he must have been dead, to distinguish him from his son of the same name. I will now therefore give a pedigree of the Family down to Sir Matthew (the third), showing the descent of the Yealand estate, and will follow it by a number of references to the second and third Matthews, given in order of date, most of them being extracts from Parliamentary Writs, and Writs of Military Summons:—

PEDIGREE.

* Calendar Rot. Chart. † Calendar Pat. Rolls, Edward III. ‡ Calendar Close Rolls—20 Edw. III.

MATTHEW DE REDMAN (the second) and MATTHEW DE REDMAN (the third).

1294. As appears from the Patent Rolls (22 Ed. I.), Matthew de Redman and John de Cornubia were appointed to assess and levy tenths of moveables granted to the King in aid of his wars.
1295. Sir Matthew de Redman was Knight of the Shire returned for Lancashire (to) Parliament at Westminster on Sunday next after the feast of St. Martin, 13 Novr. Prorogued to Sunday next before the feast of St. Andrew, the Apostle, 27 November (23 Edw. I.).
1297. Sir Matthew de Redman was summoned to appear with horses and arms at a Military Council before Edward, the King's son and Lieutenant in England, at London, in 8 days of St. Michaelmas, 6 October. In the same year he was discharged from attendance at the above-named Council and enjoined to proceed forthwith to Scotland with John of Lancaster, Robert de Clifford and others, to join the forces under Johannes de Warena, Earl of Surrey and Sussex.
1297. Sir Matthew de Redman, who is described in the Index to Petitions to the King in Council as "gardein due chastel de Dumfries," witnessed the grant of Skelsmergh by William de Lancaster (the third) to Robert de Leyburne in 1297, and, in the same year, was witness to a grant of lands at Old Hutton and Holmescales by John de Culwen to Patric de Culwen his brother.
1299. In July there was a protection, with clause volumus until M'ias, for Matthew de Redman, staying with Robert de Clifford in defence of the marches of Scotland.
1300. Sir Matthew de Redman was Commissioner of Array in the Counties of Lancaster and Westmoreland.
1300. On April 30th, there was an appointment of knights to select footmen to serve against the Scots, and Robert de Holond with Matthew de Redman was appointed to raise two thousand footmen in the County of Lancaster.
1301. On 6 March, 1301, the Patent Rolls disclose a Commission of Oyer and Terminer, on complaint by Matthew de Redman, touching the persons who, whilst he was on the King's service and under his protection, threw down a mill belonging to him at Lupton, Co. Westmoreland.
1307. Sir Matthew de Redman was discharged from attendance at the Parliament at Northampton on 13 of October. It is stated that he had been summoned to this and commanded to repair to the Scottish Marches for defence thereof. In the same year he was Knight of the Shire returned for Lancashire to the Parliament at Northampton, and was one of the conservators of the peace for the County of Westmoreland.

1308. Sir Matthew de Redman specially appointed and empowered to take the command of the forces of the County of Lancaster mustered at Carlisle on the 10th day after Michaelmas, 8th or 9th of October, for the purpose of resisting the incursions of Robert Bruce. In the same year he was in the Commission of the peace for Westmoreland (Patent Rolls Edw. II.).
1309. Sir Matthew de Redman was in the Commission of the peace, and one of the Commissioners of array and leader of the levies in the County of Lancaster; was commanded to repair to his demesne on the marches in order to defend the same against the Scots; and was one of the Justices appointed for Lancaster to receive complaints of prizes taken contrary to the Statute of Stamford, etc., etc.
1310. Sir Matthew was also enjoined to proceed with great activity in executing the commissions for the conservancy of the peace.
1310. In a writ addressed to the Sheriff of Lancaster, Sir Matthew de Redman was appointed leader of a body of foot-soldiers for service against the Scottish rebels:—
 “Rex Vice comiti Lancastriae Salutem. Cum assignavimus dilectos et fideles nostros Robertum de Leyburn, Matheum de Redman et te, ad eligendum in comitatu tuo trescentos homines pedites, et praefatum Matheum ad ducendum eosdem pedites ad nos usque Berwycum super Twedam, ita quod sit ibidem in festo nativitatis Beatae Mariae Virginis prox’ futur’ ad ultimu’, ad proficiscendum exinde nobiscum contra Scotos inimicos et rebelles, etc. T. R. apud Westm. xii die Julii.”
1311. Sir Matthew de Redman was Commissioner of array and leader of the levies in Co. Lancaster.
1313. Sir Matthew de Redman was Knight of the Shire returned for Westmoreland—obtained his writ “de expensis” for attendance at the Parliament at Westminster in 15 days of the nativity of St. John the Baptist (8th July), until Friday next after the Feast of St. James, the Apostle, 27th July. He was also Knight of the Shire returned for Westmoreland, in the Parliament holden at Westminster on Sunday next after the feast of St. Matthew the Apostle, 23rd of September. In this year he also obtained a pardon as an adherent of the Earl of Lancaster for his participation in the death of Gaveston, and the disturbance occasioned thereby.
1314. Sir Matthew de Redman was in the Commission of the peace for the County of Westmoreland (Pat. Rolls 8 Edw. II.).
1318. Sir Matthew de Redman was specially empowered with others to raise all subjects, between the ages of 20 and 60, capable of bearing arms in the County of Westmoreland.
1324. Man at arms returned by Sheriff of County of Westmoreland pursuant to writ tested at Westminster 9th May, as summoned by proclamation to attend the great Council at Westminster after Ascension Day, 30th May. In the same year he was one of the Jurors on the Inquisition on Ingelram de Gynes.

MATTHEW DE REDMAN (the third).

It is clear, as I have pointed out above, that the second Sir Matthew whose period was probably about 1235-1310, must certainly have been dead in 1327 when Adam de Redman appears in possession of Yealand. I consider it almost certain that the Matthew de Redman who appears on record from 1331 to 1360, and whom I call Matthew the third, was one person, and was son and heir of Matthew the second, but there is room for another generation, and, as will be seen hereafter, the will of a Matthew de Redman evidently a man of high rank, was proved at Carlisle in 1356.

According to the Patent Rolls Ed. III., Matthew de Redman and a Roger de Redmayne (sic.) appear among others to whom protection is granted on going to Ireland with Anthony de Lucy (1331). In 1337 Matthew is one of the "persons going beyond seas with William de Bohun, Earl of Northampton," to whom protection is granted.

In 1344 King Edward III. appointed Matthew de Redman "receptorem et custodem omnium victualium Regis apud Karliolum tunc existen' et que ad eandem civitatem ac alias partes vicinas exparte Regis mitti contigit." (Abbr. Rot. orig. Vol. 165.) In the same year he was enjoined to see that no supplies reached the Scots from Cumberland and Westmoreland ports, and about the same date was a witness to the grant by Sir Walter Strickland to his son John, of lands in Whinfell and elsewhere, and was also a juror on the Inquisition port mortem of Robert Lord Clifford.

In 30th E. III. (1356) there is a grant by Ralph, son of John de Palton to Ronald de Thornburgh of lands in Sleddall in the vill of Stirk-lanketill, to which Matthew de Redman and other knights are witnesses (Hist. Mss. Commission Rep. 10 part 4); and on page 191 of the 9th report of this Commission amongst the papers of the See of Carlisle appears "Breve regium ad recipiendum sacramentum domini Mathei de Redemane super officio vice comitis Cumbriae, et custodia castri Karlioli"—addressed to the Bishop of Carlisle in 1359.

In 1357-8 Matthew de Redman represented Westmoreland in Parliament.

In 1359 Matthew de Redman and Margaretha his wife give 20 marks for the custody of the Manor of Twyselton "cum pertinenciis quod fuit Johannis de Twyselton qui manerium illud de Henr' John' Fitzhenr' def' q', etc., infra ætatem est tenuit p' s'vicium militare habend, etc., una cum maritagio earundem" (Abb. Rot. orig. (Grossi Fines) p. 256).

The following is a copy of his will, leaving his personalty to his wife, Margaret, with instructions for his burial in the Church of St. Peter, Heversham; where, more than a century later, his descendant, Sir William Redman of Harewood Castle, was also interred:—

In nomine dei amen. Ego Mathius de Redmane de Kendall miles condo testamentum meum in hunc modum. Imprimis do et lego animam meam deo et beate Marie et omnibus sanctis et corpus ad sepeliendum in ecclesia Beati Peter de Heversham et melius meum animal nomine mortuarii mei ibidem. Item do et lego omnia bona mea mobilia et immobilia videlicet equos boves vaccas et omnimodo alia averia mea ac etiam oves multones hog gastros (lambs after the first year) meos masculos et femellas ac eciam omnia blada mea cujus cunque generis fuerint una cum omnibus et omnimodis utensilibus domus mee ubicunque fuerint inventa Margarete uxori mee ita quod ipsa post mortem meam libere ad libitum suum disponat et ordinet de eisdem pro anima mea prout melius viderit expedire. Ad istud testamentum fideliter exequendum Christopherum de Moriceby et Hugonem de Moriceby constituo executores meos.

(Probate not dated, but some time in Apl. 1360. Proved before Adam de Salkeld, of Carlisle.) Testaments Karleolensia (edited by Chancr. Ferguson). Testamentum Mathei de Redmane de Kendall militis, defuncti:—

Reg. vol. 2 fol. 66—Trans. vol. 3, p. 90.

Four years earlier, in the same volume is the will of another Matthew de Redman, of Carlisle, in which, after certain legacies to the church and to his brother-in-law, Robert D'Eyncourt, he leaves his personal estate, including money owing to him by William Baron Greystock, to his wife Emmot.

Among other military Redmans of this period was Norman de Redman, who, in 1327, was commanded to see that all men, in the Wapentake of Lonsdale, capable of fighting, were armed, and that they proceeded by forced marches, travelling day and night, to join the King's army. (Rot. Scot. I. 218.)

SIR MATTHEW REDMAN (the fourth), who was doubtless son and heir of the last named, appears to have been a singularly strenuous man whose days were spent in active military employment in France and Spain under John of Gaunt, and against the Scots.

On 6th May, 1378 there is a license for Ralph, Baron of Greystock, Matthew de Redemane Kt. and Joan his wife (daughter of Henry, Lord Fitzhugh and widow of William, fourth Baron de Greystock) to grant the town and lordship of Angerton, Co. Northumberland, held in chief, to William de Greystock Esquire, the said Ralph's brother, for life (Cal. Pat. Rolls, Rich. II. 1377-8). In this volume, Sir Matthew is referred to as Commissioner of Array, J.P., etc., for Cumberland, Westmoreland and Northumberland. In 1379 I find a Commission to Roger de Clifford, John de Haryngton, Hugh de Dacre, Matthew de Redmane and others "to array and equip with arms all the men in the County of Cumberland, capable of defending it, so as to resist hostile invasion and the destruction of the English tongue, with power to compel people to contribute thereto."

On Sept. 26th of the same year we read (Patent Rolls, Rd. 11) of "pardon at the supplication of the King's Knight, Matthew Redman, to Thomas de Denethwayt for the death of Elias Addison on Sunday before St. Mark's day (1. Ric. II)."

1380 (8 March). Matthew de Redman Kt., is one of the pledges for Thomas de Catreton, accused of having treacherously surrendered to the French for money the castle of St. Sauveur, in Normandy, whilst Keeper thereof.

1380 (12 March). Appointment of Roger de Clifford, and Matthew de Redman as a provision for the defence of the Marches of Scotland against hostile attacks, to compel by distress and imprisonment if necessary, all lay persons having lands and rents of inheritance in the counties of Cumberland and Westmoreland, of the value of 100 marks and upwards, to remain upon them; and also to see that all castles and fortalices within 3 or 4 leagues of the frontier are fortified, repaired, suitably manned and provisioned.

In 1380-1-2 he is in the Commission of the Peace for the Counties of Cumberland and Northumberland; and in 1382 is member of a Commission (with John de Nevill of Raby, and Roger de Clyfford) to arrest and imprison persons suspected of having "stolen and brought into England the goods of divers men in Scotland" contrary to truce.

"Sir Matthew was twice married, first to "Lucy," and 2ndly to Joan Fitzhugh.† In 1383 we find a license, "for £350 paid to the King," to transfer to Henry de Percy, Earl of Northumberland and his wife, on certain conditions, "the Castle and Manor of Langeley, Co. Northd., a moiety of the manor of Aspatrik, and a third part of the Barony of Egermund, Co. Northumberland, with the advowson of Ulvedale, after the death of Joan, wife of Matthew de Redemayne, Knight." (Pat. Rolls 1383.)

The records are full of evidence of Sir Matthew's military activity and prowess. During the years 1373-80 he was fighting in France and Spain under John of Gaunt; and in 1376 he was taken prisoner, Parliament petitioning for his release. In the previous year he was ordered by the King to proclaim in Brittany the truce concluded with France (Rymer's Foedera, iii. p. ii. p. 1034).

On the 10th of March, 1380, when he was joint warden, with Roger de Clifford, of the West marches, he was ordered to hasten with all dispatch to the defence of Carlisle (Rot. Scot V. 2 pp. 21, 35, 82-8). In the following year he was appointed governor of Roxburgh, "custos castri de Rokesburgh a primo die Maii prox' futur' per unum ann' prox' sequentem" in succession to the Earl of Northumberland (Exchequer, Queen's Remembrancer Miscellanea, 5 Rich. II. Ministers' account).

At the same time he was appointed Sheriff of the county, and a mandate was issued to the Bishops, Barons, etc., "quod eidem Matheo, tanquam vic. nostro com' predicti, in omnibus quae ad officium vice comitatus pr'd'ti pertinent, intendentes sint et respondentes."

Five years later (in 1386) he was commissioned with Lord Nevill of Raby to treat with the Scots; and in 1388 he was a Commissioner with William Lord Aldeburgh (one of whose daughters his son, Richard, married) for arraying all men of arms in Northumberland and the West Riding of Yorkshire. In the same year he was Governor of Berwick; and the story of his share in the Battle of Otterbourne may be read in Froissart's Chronicle, and Ridpath's Border History; while an amusing story is told of him, in connection with his refusal to admit the Duke of Lancaster and his army into Berwick, by Grafton in his Chronicle (Vol. I. pp. 247-8).

Sir Matthew died about 1390, and in 1407 Richard Burgh, who married Margaret, daughter of Thomas de Ros, fifth Baron of Hamlake, left the sum of 13 marks to two chantry priests to celebrate masses for one year for the souls of Richard, King of England, the Duke of Norfolk, Thomas, Lord Clifford and Sir Matthew Redman, Knight. (Test Ebor, Surtees Soc. I. 348.)

With the death of this Sir Matthew the chief interest in the Redman family is diverted to Harewood, through the marriage of his eldest son and heir, Sir Richard, to Elizabeth, Lady of Harewood, daughter and co-heir of William, the first Lord Aldeburgh; although Levens remained for several more generations in the possession and partial occupation of the family.

CORRESPONDENCE.

To the Editor of THE NORTHERN GENEALOGIST.

SIR,—I am just launching a scheme which I have had on the stocks for some time, viz., a complete abstract of the wills in P.C.C. for a period (which I hope, if I live and get any support in it, will cover most, if not all, of the 17th century), to be on the plan of Mr. Brigg's book "Wootton," published some years since. I have the first volume in hand "Soame," which I selected as the year of the Puritan migration or the beginning of it, and shall follow it up as rapidly as the support accorded me will allow. I am backed in this by the President of our Hist. Gen. Society and have many very encouraging letters from fellow-antiquaries commending the scheme and wishing me God speed. I hope to place a good many copies in England, where it would really do more good than to us though, of course, we were all English then! But naturally, it will touch many more families who are English to-day than who are American.

Yours faithfully,

J. HENRY LEA.

18, Somerset Street, Boston, Mass., U.S.A.

[Our readers will do well to note the above letter. Any of Mr. Lea's work is sure to be of the best in quality and all that is possible in quantity.—ED. N.G.]

REVIEWS.

"THE ANCESTOR." An illustrated quarterly review. No. I., April, 1902. (Archibald Constable and Company, Lim.; 5s. net.)

This splendid volume (for it is no less) of 282 super-royal octavo pages, represents a new combined effort on the part of two antiquarian schools, each of which has already done good service in the cause of genuine archæology. The one of these schools is that of Mr. J. Horace Round, who, being possessed of a critical acumen, rare both in quality and quantity, has by dint of taking nothing for granted, and by going always to the original document, secured the kernel of English mediæval life and organisation where others—and we do not except the most eminent—have been content to nibble at the shell. Mr. Round's services to the History of the Feudal Period have been great, and not least among them is the fine work he has done in the befogged and insulted domain of Genealogy. His destructive criticism has happily overturned much shoddy rubbish, while he has strengthened and beautified many a fine old structure by the exercise of a constructive ability, from which it is impossible to withhold the name of genius. Joined with him in this enterprise is the School of Heraldry with which the names of Mr. St. John Hope, and Mr. Oswald Barron are associated, who by applying the like principles to the study of Armorial Bearings, and by insistently fixing attention on the "ante-decadence" period of Heraldic Art, have done much to rescue a noble pursuit from degradation and ridicule. It is a pleasure to know that in the pages of "The Ancestor" these two bands of fellow-workers will have a worthy means of pursuing with more publicity the useful and admirable work in which they are engaged.

Turning to the volume before us, we are glad to find a good proportion of Mr. Round's vigorous work. "The origin of the Fitz Gerald's" and a review of Dr. Madan's "The Gresleys of Drakelow" are his, and quite worthy to be mentioned with them is Mr. Bird's "The Grosvenor Myth." The place of honour is given to a most interesting paper on "The Harris Family," by Lord Malmesbury. This is abundantly illustrated by beautiful photogravure engravings of family portraits. Lady Victoria Manners' account of The Miniatures at Belvoir is also charmingly illustrated, and the matter is quite worthy of the adornment.

Mr. Hope's paper on "Coronation Ornaments" well repays study, and in connection with the coming coronation, we desire to associate ourselves with Mr. Legg's protest against the ruthless excision of interesting ceremonies for which the event will be notable.

On the heraldic side, Mr. Barron contributes much that is most valuable and interesting. We are a little inclined to regret his castigation of Mr. Foster's "Some Feudal Coats of Arms," as under special circumstances, a little book-making by one who has done much good work is perhaps excusable. Mr. Foster's book is, however, in several ways pretentious and unsatisfactory. Space fails us to say more, but we cannot leave unmentioned Sir H. Maxwell-Lydes "Heraldic Glass from Lyte's Cary," charmingly illustrated by the aid of photography and colour printing.

Of special interest to North Country readers are the "Ancestor's Letters," written by the Baildons of Baildon, a pedigree of the military family of Batty, and Chancery suits relating to the families of Rawlinson, Arundell, and Lonsdale of Swaildale, Atkins of Hanbeck, Lincs.

The production of such a splendid volume at so small a price may well bring despair to those responsible for minor serials, but "it takes all sorts to make a world," and we trust that "The Ancestor" and "The Northern Genealogist" may both continue to do good work for many years to come.

"NOTES ON STAFFORDSHIRE PLACE-NAMES." By W. H. Duignan, of Walsall. London: Henry Frowde, 1902.

The genealogies of place-names are often as intricate and confusing as the pedigrees of families, and the resemblance between the two justifies a notice in these pages of the very interesting work before us. Mr. Duignan has for many years made a study of Staffordshire Place-Names, and was formerly perhaps a little too much inclined to discover Celtic sources for English names. In the book before us he acknowledges the influence and assistance of Mr. W. H. Stevenson, the eminent Anglo-Saxon scholar, and we hope we are not presumptuous if we express an opinion that the author is now a little too anti-Celtic. In former writings, for example, he derived the name of "Watling" Street from the Welsh "Gwaith y leng," meaning "the work of the legion." This derivation although we believe novel, had the advantage that it explained "Sarn Helen" (sarn y leng), which is the name borne by several ancient roads in Wales. In the present book it is entirely discarded. We suspect that the "Watlingus" recorded in 1183 was really "of the Watling (street)." We think that Mr. Duignan and Mr. Stevenson attribute too much importance to early forms of spelling, whether in Domesday Book or elsewhere. It is plain that our ancestors (like their descendants) often slurred over letters and syllables. For example, in the case of Bucknall, Mr. Duignan discusses carefully the actual forms taken by the last syllable, namely, "hale," "hole," and "howe"; but we can recall the name of another "Bucknall" which occurs in early times as "Bukenholt," and that was probably the derivation here. We should want further evidence before accepting the theory that the termination "hale" often means not a "hall," but a "meadow." Mr. Duignan has collected a large amount of valuable and interesting information; has used it warily and presented it so attractively that for our part we found it difficult to refrain from reading the book half through at one sitting.

HERIOTS, &c., ON THE WAKEFIELD MANOR ROLLS.

The present Calendar is ready for printing as far back as the 14th century, but the period of 1500—1563 is chosen to begin with, as being of more general interest to modern genealogists, who will thus be saved from going through the Rolls membrane by membrane, as there are no Docket Books or Indexes for this period. Practically all the entries of Heriots are here given, the few omitted being largely or entirely undecipherable.

NOTES AND QUERIES.

Fitzwilliam. In speaking of the recent death of Earl Fitzwilliam, the "Daily Telegraph" has the following note:—"The race from which he sprang is one of the most ancient in the United Kingdom, as is shown by the fact that ever since the Conquest the heir to the Fitzwilliam peerage has been christened in the robe presented by William the Conqueror to the head of the English branch of the family who took part in the successful Norman invasion of this island in the year 1066." Can any reader say whether there is the slightest foundation for this apparently improbable story?—A. R. W.

Warton, Wharton.—Was the Rev. Anthony Wharton (baptized at Walton, Lancs., 1581, B.A., Lincoln College, Oxford, curate of Hamsey, Sussex 1607 and Breamore, Hants, 1607-1661 (Will in R. C. C.) a son of William Warton of Wharton Hall, Hulton, Lancs.?—A. C. H.

EARLY CUMBERLAND AND WESTMORELAND PEDIGREES FROM THE PLEA ROLLS.

FROM PLANTAGANET HARRISON'S PLEA ROLL. NOTES IN THE PUBLIC RECORD OFFICE.

Edited by A. A. BETHUNE-BAKER, Esq., Barrister-at-Law.

V.—Easter 2 Hen. VI. Coram Rege Roll, No. 7.—A suit showing that John de Clifford died seized in his own right of inter alia manors, etc., of Alderton, etc., and that the King committed to Elizabeth his widow by the name of Elizabeth who was wife of John “dni” de Clyfford and Elizabeth who was wife of Thomas late “dni” de Clifford the custody of the said manors, etc., which belonged to the said John during the minority of the Thomas son and heir of the said John.

VI.—Trinity 22 Hen. VI. Coram Rege Roll, No. 88.—An Inq. at Carlisle held 12 Novr. 21 Hen. VI. shows that Patrick de Southayk held amongst other lands 12 acres of meadow called “le Bradmedowe juxter Blenkowe” at Skelton on a demise which Adam de Blenkowe made to the said Patrick for the term of his life with remainder after the death of the said Patrick to the said Adam and his heirs male together with certain other lands adjoining and certain lands in the ville of Skelton, and the following pedigrees are shown:—

ADAM DE BLENKOWE had a son and heir.

. . . BLENKOWE father of RICHARD BLENKOWE, kinsman and heir male to Adam, and of full age.

PATRICK DE SOUTHAYK had a son and heir,

WILLIAM DE SOUTHAYK, to whom his father gave a cottage, etc., in 2 Henry IV. He married Katherine . . . and by her was father of

JOHN SOUTHAYK, kinsman and heir to Patrick, and of full age.

* The explanation of the above-mentioned suit is that when John de Clifford died in March, 1422, he was survived by his mother, Elizabeth, who was widow of Thomas de Clifford, as well as by his own widow, also named Elizabeth. The wardship of the young heir had evidently been granted to his mother and grandmother jointly, and the suit doubtless arose in consequence of the death of the grandmother, which happened in March, 2 Henry VI., i.e., 1424. (Complete Peerage II., 290.)

† This date, if Richard was of full age, 21, Hen. VI., how merely 26 in 31 Hen. VI., and so John? This looseness is not unusual in the Plea Rolls and Inquisitions.

VII.—Cumberland—Trinity 31 Hen. VI. Coram Rege Roll, No. 124.—Another inq. refers to same demise and adds age of Richard Blenkowe as 26 and upwards at taking of inquest, and of John Southayk as 29 and upwards at taking of inquest "Viz't 20 Ap. 31 Hen. VI." and gives John S. as "of Skelton Co. Cumberland gentn."

VIII.—Westmoreland—By means of a fine levied at Westminster (Michaelmas Term 6 Hen. 4) 10 messuages, 6 cottages, 300 acres of land, and 12 acres of wood, etc., in Caldebek held of the King in capite were settled on Thomas Gervaes (whose address is not stated in the notes) and Johanna his wife for their lives, with remainder to Adam, son of the said Thomas and Johanna, and Alicia, daughter of Robert Louthe or Louthre and the heirs begotten of the bodies of the said Adam and Alicia, with remainder to the right heirs of the said Johanna.

ADAM THE SON of the said Thomas Gervaes and Johanna is subsequently described as of Haltclough—Adam Haltclough or de Haltclough His death is not stated, but his wife Alicia died 23 Hen. VI. seized in fee tail of a portion of the property before described. In that year it was found on inquisition held at Carlisle that ROBERT HALTCLOUGH was son and heir of the said Alice, and that he was then aged 32 and upwards. By a subsequent inquisition held 29 Hen. VI. it was found that the said Robert Haltclough died in Wales in that year, and that Matilda Haltclough and Isabella Haltclough were his daughters and heiresses, the said Matilda then aged 6 years and the said Isabella then aged 5 years. It would appear that Isabella in or before the 3rd year of Ed. IV. was married to Thomas Baty or Paty.

Coram Rege. Trinity 34 Hen. VI., No. 136, M. 159; Easter 36 Hen. VI., No. 143. M. 141; and Trinity 3 Ed. IV., No. 10, M. 102.

* It may be noted that a Thomas Baty, senior, is mentioned as of Appleby in the county of Westmoreland, gentleman, in the 8th year of Ed. IV. (Ceram Rege Michaelmas 8 Ed. IV. No. 31 M. 61, 2nd part).

LINCOLN MARRIAGE LICENCES.

This is an alphabetical Calendar (continued from Vol. III., page 66) in succession to those printed in Gibbons' "Lincoln Marriage Licences." It is compiled from several different sources, the following abbreviations being used to denote which source:—

Ael.—Liber Aelmer, Linc. Archid.

Act Book.—Consistory Court Act Books of Wills, &c.

D.—"Marriage Bonds (Divers Years)" in brown paper covers.

C.—Bishop Chaderton's Register.

F.—Faculty Book, 1611-1693.* Licences not marked with one of these abbreviations are from the Marriage Bonds (which the Editor arranged in portfolios, according to date, some years ago), supplemented by the allegations where forthcoming.

The pre-Reformation Marriage Dispensations in the Bishop's Registers are not included in this Series.

MURGATROYD OF MURGATROYD, ETC.

[INTRODUCTORY.]

THERE is practically no doubt that all the families of this surname derive their origin from one common stock which was seated originally at Murgatroyd, i.e., Moor-gate-royd, a small estate in Warley near Halifax.* Although I have not as yet made a close enquiry into the early history of this family, I have the clearest evidence that some of the Murgatroyds of Bingley were descended from the Murgatroyds of Murgatroyd, and I trust that enough interest may be aroused by these introductory notes to justify me in asking for a fair proportion of space in the pages of THE NORTHERN GENEALOGIST.

If that can be arranged, I propose, in the first place, to give the best account I can of the various families of Murgatroyd during the past two centuries, and by the time that has been achieved, I trust that much information will have come to hand with regard to the more ancient history of the family.

At present I am unable to say what is the earliest date at which Murgatroyds are found at Murgatroyd. Apparently they were not there when the subsidy of 1 Edward I. was collected, and for the next three centuries my researches are, at present, incomplete. It will be sufficient to state that from deeds quoted in "Ancient Bingley," it is clear that toward the end of Elizabeth's reign there was a James Muratroyd junior of Murgatroyd in Warley. He was probably the James "Morgateride of Morgateride" within the township of Warley who, according to Dugdale's Visitation of Yorkshire, married Dorothy Hanson, daughter of Edward Hanson of Woodhouse.† Dorothy it may be mentioned, was baptized at Elland 26th April 1612.

Another "Visitation Family" also intermarried with the Murgatroyds; for it appears that Martha daughter of William Batte of Okewell Hall, Birstal, Esquire, married a John Murgatroyd. Martha was born about 1661-3, and had three brothers who all died without issue. The last of them, John Batt Esq. of Oakwell Hall, died in 1707, leaving the bulk of his property to Martha's son John Murgatroyd.‡

With regard to the Murgatroyds of Bingley, it is certain that some were here as early as 1551*; but I think it will be found that the best-known family of them, namely, the Murgatroyds of Greenhill, were descended from James and Dorothy Murgatroyd of Murgatroyd mentioned above.

The Murgatroyd Family it should be mentioned, has produced at least one worthy who has found a niche in that British Temple of Fame, "The Dictionary of National Biography." This person was Michael Murgatroid, who flourished from 1551 to 1608. He was, we are told, born in Yorkshire, and educated at the expense of his kinsman Richard Gascoign, gentleman, of Yorkshire. He became secretary, and afterwards steward to Archbishop Whitgift and appears to have written Latin verses, and also Memoranda of Ecclesiastical and Public Affairs, and his M.SS. are still in the Library at Lambeth. He died at Waddon near Croydon.

The name is generally found in Yorkshire and Lancashire, but as early as 1705 we find that "John Murgetroid of Garrey co. Cardigan aged thirty, bachelor" had license at Worcester to marry "Mary Prosser of Worcester aged twenty-five, maiden."* And coming a little later, we find that on 24 Aug. 1731, at Middle Littleton, Worcestershire, John Murgatroyd and Elizabeth Canning of Evesham were married.†

In Canon Hulbert's "Annals of the Parish of Almondbury" part 4, a considerable amount of space is devoted to an account of an eminent divine bearing this surname, but I could not find anything to show from what branch of the family he descended.

I have before me Baines' History Directory of Yorkshire published in 1822; and it is an interesting example of the continuity of English life before the Railways came, to find that in Warley there were then the following residents:—

J. Murgatroyd worsted manufacturer, Green Edge.

William Murgatroyd, do. do. Slack.

Hartley Murgatroyd, gentleman, Hoyle Green.

D. E. Murgatroyd, worsted manufacturer.

John Murgatroyd, top maker, Clough.

Thomas Murgatroyd, victualler, Maypole.

Squire Murgatroyd, worsted manufacturer, Warley Wood.

William Murgatroyd, victualler, Friendly Inn.

At Bingley, there were then no Murgatroyds, but there was a James Murgatroyd Maud, wool-stapler.

At Midgley, Halifax, where the Murgatroyds were landowners as early as 1561, we find in the same Directory:—

Henry Murgatroyd, Esquire, Greave.

James Murgatroyd, cotton manufacturer, Greave House.

William Murgatroyd, worsted spinner, Middle Foot.

There must be many descendants of these; and I shall be glad to know whether there are any who take an interest in their ancestry, and who may be able and willing to send me particulars. It is only by such co-operation that anything approaching to a complete account of the family can be recorded in these or any pages.

MARRIAGE BONDS OF THE DEAN AND CHAPTER OF YORK.

By T. B. Whytehead, Esq., Chapter Clerk, and Captain Sandwith, 8th Hussars

The previous Series of Dean and Chapter's Marriage Bonds (completed in Vol. IV., page 33), comprises all that exist in York Minster for the several Vacancies of the See, that is to say, for the whole Diocese, in 1664, 1683-88, 1757, 1761, and 1776-7.

There are also bonds for two later vacancies, 1807-8 and 1847, which may be printed later.

The present Series comprises the Dean and Chapter's Bonds for their own peculiar jurisdiction, and that of most of their prebends, extending over some 70 or 80 parishes in the City of York, and the Counties of York, Nottingham, and Lancaster. Some of the Prebendaries issued their own Marriage Licences, which may be printed later.

These Dean and Chapter Bonds are put up in bundles of various periods, the dates often over-lapping each other, and the early ones have been calendared as they came to hand, a fact which will account for their appearing, now and then, out of their due order of date.

THE ARMS OF GREYSTOCK

In THE NORTHERN GENEALOGIST, Vol. IV., p. 106, it is suggested that the three cushions of the Redmayne Arms were probably derived from the three cushions in the Arms of the Greystocks. This theory was put forth by Mr. Greenwood on my suggestion, and my authority for assigning the "three cushions" to Greystock was Papworth's "British Armorial." In that work, it is stated that the arms of Greystock Baron of Greystock are three cushions, and the authorities given are "Glover's Ordinary" and the "Jenyns Roll" (Harl. M.S. 6589), and reference is made to the monument of John de Greystock in Greystock Church. It is, however, also true that this work further assigns Gules three lozenges argent as the arms of Greystock, again giving as reference the "Jenyns Roll." It further, on the authority of a Roll of A.D. 1299, gives Argent three lozenges gules as the arms of John Baron of Greystock.

By the kindness of Mr. Joseph Foster, I am able to reproduce from his interesting work "Feudal Arms" two contemporary representations of the ancient arms of Greystock, which show that they should be described as three lozenges, not three cushions.

The first represents an incised monumental slab in Greystock Church with the inscription JOHES QODAM BARO DE GRAYSTOK. The second word of the inscription I take to mean QUONDAM, and I presume that the tomb is that of John de Greystock who died in 1305-6. It certainly appears to me that the oblong rectangle in which each of the three lozenges on the shield is framed, represents the carver's somewhat primitive substitute for carving in relief, but I can imagine that Papworth may have been misled by some such drawing, to suppose that the charges on the shield were intended to represent cushions. In any case, however, the second engraving which represents a seal, clearly exhibits three lozenges. I mistrust a little the accuracy of the engraving, but as far as I can judge, the seal would belong to the end of the thirteenth century, and was therefore the seal of the original John de Greystock.

There was another John de Greystock of the second family, who died in 1436, and was buried at Greystock, but this family seems to have borne for arms Barry, three chaplets vert.

It is clear that neither of the Greystock families bore the "three cushions," and, therefore, the suggestion that the Redmans derived those charges from the Greystocks must be abandoned.

W. F. C.

THE REDMANS, OF HAREWOOD CASTLE, YORKSHIRE.

[By W. GREENWOOD, Esqr., Barrister-at-Law.]

SIR RICHARD REDMAN.

Of the children of Sir Matthew Redman (the fourth) his daughter, Felicia, married Sir John de Lumley, who fell at the Battle of Baugy, in Anjou, in 1431; and from her are lineally descended the Earls of Scarborough and other noble families of to-day.

With Sir Matthew's son, Richard, possibly the most notable and historic member of the Redman family, commences a new epoch, the principal scene of which is the Castle of Harewood, near Leeds.

Richard, who was the son of the fourth Sir Matthew by his wife Lucy (and not as is commonly accepted by Joan Fitzhugh) appears to have been a Knight as early as 1388, for in that year there was a grant for life to the King's Knight, Richard Redman, of all the lands and tenements which the King has in the town of "Blencogo" (Cumberland). (Patent Rolls, 11. Richard II.)

In 1390 we find a confirmation by Richard de Redman, Kt., of the confirmation to the monks of Byland by Henry de Redman and Matthew his son. (Hist. M.S.S. Commission. Report 10, part 4—Colonel Bagot's Levens Hall Papers.)

In the same year (and in 1394-8, 1402 and 1411) Sir Richard was Sheriff of Cumberland; and in 1390 he received a grant of lands in Heversham (near Levens, in Westmoreland):—

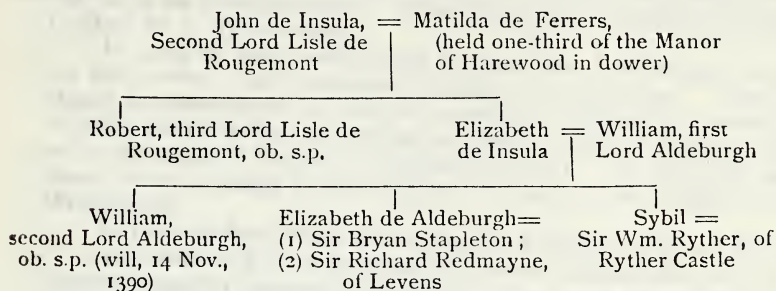

"Johannes, filius Radulphi Arneys, dedit Ric'o de Redemane militi, omn' terras et tenement' sua in villis de Heversham, et Hoton Rofe in Kendale. Test. Waltero de Strikland milite; Joh'e de Strikland, &c." (MS. Dods. 159 fol. 195b).

In the Cal. Rot. Pat., 16 Richd. II. (1392-3) we find the following licence to Sir Richard Redman to engage in a joust:—"Rex concessit quod Ricardus Redeman cum tribus sociis suis, a primo Junii usque vicesimum septenium ejusdem apud Carleol' coram Henrico de Percy possit de guerra hastiludiare cum Willelmo Haliburton et tribus sociis suis," &c.

It was about this time (1393), although I have not found it possible to fix the exact date, that Sir Richard Redman married Elizabeth, widow of Sir Bryan Stapleton (who died 15 Ric. II.), from whom the present Lords Beaumont descend, and daughter and co-heiress of William 1st Lord Alde-burgh, Lord of Harewood; and it was from this marriage that a moiety of the Castle and Manor of Harewood, together with other possessions in the district, came into the hands of the Redman family, with whom, in conjunction with the Rythers, they remained until the end of the sixteenth century.

The following pedigree may make the descent of Elizabeth Aldeburgh clear:—

Thus, by the death of William, 2nd Lord Aldeburgh, without offspring, the Castle and Manor of Harewood came into the possession of his two sisters, in equal moieties; and through them into the joint ownership of the families of Redman and Ryther, who appear for many generations to have occupied the Castle alternately.

Into the detailed history of Harewood Castle there is unfortunately not space to enter. It may, however, be faintly sketched in outline. The original Castle appears to have been built shortly after the Conquest by Robert de Romelli, Lord of Skipton and Craven, and a companion-in-arms of the Conqueror. From its founder it descended, through William de Meschines, Earl of Cambridge (who married Cecilia, daughter of Robert de Romelli), the de Courceys, Barons of Stoke Courcey, the Fitzgeralds, de Redvers, de Fortibus (Earls of Albemarle), and Edmund, Earl of Lancaster, to the Lord L'Isle of Rougemont, from whom, as we have seen, it passed through the Aldeburghs to the Redman and Ryther families.

The Redman tenure of the Castle was evidenced by many coats of arms in its hall and in the neighbouring church. Among these armorial bearings, in stained glass and graven in stone on the walls of the chapel (as given by Glover, 1585) were the following:—Redman, Redman and Aldeburgh, Redman and Sutton, Redman and Daincourt, Aldeburgh, L'Isle de Rougemont, Baliol, Ryther, Constable, Vipont, Gascoigne, Mowbray, Neville, Stapleton and Huddlestone.

Elizabeth Redman is mentioned in the will of Sir Thomas Roos, of Ingmanthorp, dated 16 July, 1399:—"Item lego dominæ Elizabethæ Redman meam legendam Sanctorum"; and in the will of Sir Henry Vavasour, of Haslewood, dated 1413:—"Item lego dominæ Elizabethæ de Redman unum annulum de auro." (Test. Ebor. i. pp. 351-361, Surtees Soc.—Duchetiana, by Sir Geo. Duckett, Bart.).

In 1399-1400 Sir Richard Redman was again granted leave to hold a tournament at Carlisle, and had letters of protection for a journey to Ireland with John 3rd Lord Cobham; and in May of 1400 we find him treating for peace with the Scots. Three years later, and also in 1405, he was Sheriff of Yorkshire.

In July, 1404, he was ordered to array the men of Kendal and Lonsdale:—"R. dilecto et fideli suo Ricardo Redeman Chivaler Salutem, Sciatis quod assignavimus vos ad arraiandum omnes homines ad arma et sagittarios, ac alios homines defensabiles in partibus de Kendale et Lonsdale in com. Westmerlandiæ. Teste Rege apud Pontfreyt, vij die Julii" (5 Hen. IV.) (Duchetiana.)

In 1405 he was commissioned to exact fines from those concerned in the Percy rising; and represented Yorkshire in Parliament. That he was skilled in statesmanship as well as in arms and diplomacy is proved by the fact that ten years later he was elected Speaker of the Parliament which sat at Northampton in the year of Agincourt (1415). Sir Richard's arms, as stated in my previous paper, may still be seen in the Speaker's house at Westminster.

In 1407 we find (Fines Term. Pasche, 8 Henry IV.):—"Finis inter. — petentem et Ric'um Redman, Chivaler et Elizabetham uxorem defor- ciantes de mediat' manerii de Harwood; (the estate was evidently settled on them for lives, with remainder in tail male to their sons Matthew and Richard). Si nullus hæres masculus fit inter eos, remaneat heredibus Briani Stapleton, filii predictæ Elizabethæ; Si Brianus ob. s.p. remaneat rectis heredibus predictæ Elizabethæ." (Dods MS. 159, fol. 196b).

In 1408 he was appointed to receive submissions from the rebels defeated at Bramham Moor; and a year later (1409), in association with Richard Holme, Canon of York, he was appointed to treat of peace with the Scottish Commissioners:—"Rex dilectis et fidelibus suis Ricardo Redeman Chivaler et magistro Ricardo Holme, Canonico Ebor. Salutem. Sciatis quod nos Constituimus et assignamus vos deputatos nostros et nuncios speciales." Given at Westminster, 20 Novr., 1409 (Rot. Scot ii. 192)

In 1415 he was engaged in mobilising the forces for the French war; and from the Patent Rolls, Hy. VI., we glean the following further references to him:—"1422, 15 Decr. Inspeximus and confirmation of letters patent dated 14 June 1 Hy. V. inspecting and confirming the patents dated 31 Octr. 1 Hy. IV. inspecting and confirming letters patent dated 5 Nov. 14 Rd. 1424, Sept. 5. Commission to Ralph Grastock, Richard Redman, William Rither, and Robert Roos, of Ingmanthorp Knights, etc., to make inquisition in the County of Yorkshire as to lands, tenements, meadows, pastures, services, wardships, marriages and escheats alleged to have been concealed from the King within the said county.

1423-4. Rd. Redman Knight in Commission of the Peace for the West Riding of Yorkshire.

On Nov. 17, 1426, Richard Redmayne Esq. paid 10 marks for acquiring from Ric. Redman Kt. without licence the Manor of Blencogo, Co. Cumberland, by the name of all the lands and tenements of the said Rd. Redman Kt. in Blencogo held in chief. (Pat. Rolls 5 Hen. VI.)

Sir Richard appears to have married for his second wife, a few years before his death, Elizabeth, daughter of Sir William Gascoigne, the famous Chief Justice; this being the first of three alliances between the Redmans of Harewood and the Gascoignes of Gawthorpe. Elizabeth Gascoigne, whose inquisition is dated 1434, survived Sir Richard eight years, and is buried in Harewood Church, where an altar tomb perpetuates her memory.

Sir Richard Redman died in 1426, and was buried under the arch on the north side of the chancel of Harewood Church, where a magnificent tomb, bearing recumbent figures of a knight and his lady, was erected to his memory and to that of Elizabeth Aldeburgh, his first wife. Of this tomb, and of the tomb of Sir Richard and his second wife, Elizabeth Gascoigne there is a detailed, if scarcely technically correct, description in Jones's History of Harewood (pp. 107 and 109-110).

Sir Richard's will (as given in Test Ebor. I. pp. 351, 361, Sur. Soc.) is very interesting and valuable. A short extract from it is all that space permits:—

"Ric'us Redman miles ordinat testamentum primo die maii 3 H. VI. de manerio de Levens in Com. Westm. et de burgagiis et reversionibus cum pertinentiis in villa de Harwode, cum advocacionibus cantuariarum in eccl'ia de Harwode in hunc modum; Imprimis volo quod feoffatores mei feoffati in manerio de Levens, et burgagiis et advocacionibus cantuariarum de Harwode, dimittant et feoffamentum faciant, statim post mortem mei prefati Ric'i Redman militis, per cartas indentatas Ric'o filio me'o in omnibus predictis manerio et burgagiis tenend. et habend eidem Ric'o filio meo, usq' ad plenam ætatem Ric'i Redman, filii Mathei Redman militis. Ita quod cum proedictus Ric'us, filius Mathei Redman, militis, pervenerit ad suam plenam ætatem, volo quod omnia predicta maneria, et burgag' etc., remaneant predicto Ric'o Redman, filio Mathei et si predictus Ric'us, filius Mathei Redman, obierit sine herede masculo de corpore suo procreato, predicta maneria et burgag' remaneant Ric'o Redman, filio meo, et heredibus masculis de corpore suo, et si Ric'us fil' meus ob. s.p. masculo, remaneant Joh'i Redman filio Elene Grene," etc., etc.

Sir Richard Redman appears to have had three children:—

I. SIR MATTHEW REDMAN (the fifth) of whom hereafter

II. RICHARD REDMAN mentioned in his father's will.

III. JOAN REDMAN married * Sir Thomas Wentworth, and became the ancestress of the great Earl of Strafford, the Marquess of Rockingham, and other historic nobles.

* Burke's Peerage

SIR MATTHEW REDMAN (the fifth).

Of this Sir Matthew, who died in his father's lifetime, very little appears in the records. His marriage * to Johanna, daughter of Sir Thomas Tunstall, of Thurland Castle, was the first of the five Redman alliances with that once-distinguished family; and his son, Richard, when he succeeded, on his grandfather's death, to the family estates was a boy of eight years, with a long minority before him under the guardianship of Thomas Redman and Sir Richard Duket, of Grayrigg. (Fines, 5 Hen. VI., m. 15, 1427.)

SIR RICHARD REDMAN.

This second Sir Richard continued the family tradition by representing the County of Westmoreland in Parliament in 1442, when he was twenty-four years of age; and, probably about the same time, he married Margaret, daughter of Thomas Middleton, of Middleton Hall, Westmoreland, a lineal descendant of the Musgraves, Berkeleys and de Ferrers, Earls of Derby.

In 1465, Sir Richard appears to have got into trouble with his tailor, for among the pardons of outlawry on the 19th of June of that year we find "Richard Redeman, late of Levens, Westmoreland, for not appearing before the same Justices to answer Roger Dawson, citizen and tailor of London, touching a debt of £55." (Patent Rolls, Edwd. IV.) These rolls contain further reference to "Rd. Redmayne Kt." in the years 1467-69 and 1477.

In 1471 we find him on the Commission of Peace for Westmoreland; and three years later the Patent Rolls disclose a grant to Thos. Twysday, of the lands which the King has or ought to have in Blencogo, Co. Cumberland, and which Rd. Redman, Kt., lately had of the grant of Hy. IV. Sir Richard died in 1476 at the age of fifty-eight.

Sir Richard had issue†—

- I. SIR WILLIAM REDMAN, of whom next
- II. EDWARD REDMAN, of whom later, as heir to his brother William.
- III. WALTER REDMAN, mentioned in the will of his brother William.
- IV. RICHARD REDMAN, mentioned in the will of his brother William.
- V. ELIZABETH REDMAN, mentioned as "sister Elizabeth Preston" in the will of her brother William; married a Preston of Preston and Levens.

* Dodsworth MSS. and "Duchetiana," p. 209.

† As mentioned hereafter, Sir George Duckett ("Duchetiana," p. 24), states that Sir Richard had thirteen children, but only these five appear upon record. Sir George's authority for the numerous family appears to be the Vincent and Philpot Collections in Heralds' College.

SIR WILLIAM REDMAN.

Sir William, who succeeded his father, Sir Richard, appears as Knight of the Shire for Westmoreland, in 1477, the county which so many of his ancestors had represented in Parliament, and three years later he was appointed a Commissioner of Array in the West Riding of the County of York.

In 1458 he married Margaret, daughter of Sir Walter Strickland, of Sizergh; and as she was within the fourth degree of relationship to her husband, a dispensation for the marriage was given by Vincent Clement, the Pope's Nuncio (M.SS. of W. C. Strickland, Esq, of Sizergh). Sir William died without issue in 1482, after a very brief tenure of the family estates, and was, by his own wish, buried in the Church of Heversham, near Levens, the ancient seat of his family.

In 1628 the remains of his epitaph were to be seen in Heversham Church, "in the middle quyer."

"Redman erat certe Levens hères, Harwood aperte, Edwardo iiij^o regi meruit famulari" The remainder of the epitaph is described as "broken." (MS. Dods. 119, fo. 74).

Sir William's nuncupative will, disposing of a few legacies to relatives and dependents, is interesting :—

11 Sep. 1482. Nuncupative will of William Redeman, of Harewood, Miles.

Gives his body to be buried in the Church at Heversham.

Waltero, fratri suo xx^{li}.

Johanni Redeman, servienti suo, iiij marks.

Roberto Tunstall, „ „ xxxiiij marks.

Georgio Redeman, „ „ c^s.

Voluit quod Georgius Redeman sit ballivus de Harwood cum feodo et vadiis, ad quod Edwardus frater meus concessit.

Elizabeth Preston, sorori suæ, white horse and 5 marks.

He named as exors., Margaret, his wife, Edwardum Redeman, his brother, Dame (Douce) de Strykland, Thos. Strykland and John Preston.

The following inquisition deals with the dower of Sir William's widow :—

"Inquisitio capta ap^d Kirkby-in-Kendall, 21 E. IV. Juratores dicunt super sacramentum suum, quod Ric^{us} Redman, miles, obiit sei^{tus} de manerio de Levyns, in dⁿico suo ut de feodo, et q^d idem Ric^{us} sic sei^{tus} dedit Will^o filio suo et heredi, et Margarete uxⁱ ejus, p^r cellam manerii p^r d^{ci}, et p^r d^{cus} Will^{us} obiit de tali statu sei^{tus}. Et jurⁱ dicunt quod Margareta Redman, nup^r uxor Willⁱ Redman, militis inventa est dotabilis, etc. Ergo escætor assignavit eidem Margaret^r, p^r Thoma^r Strikland, militem, attornatum suum, quod Edwardus Redman vel suus attornatus p^r promoniciones eⁱs f^{cas} assign^r tertiam partem omnium mess, etc., de Levyns," etc. (Dod's MS. 159, fo. 196.)

EDWARD REDMAN.*

Edward Redman, who succeeded his brother William, appears to have been twenty-six years old at the time of his accession, as is evidenced by the following Escheat, of 22 Edw. IV., No. 49. (Dods. MS. 70, fol. 141b).

"Jur' dic' qd Will'us Redman, miles tenuit die quo obiit manerium de Levens de Will'o Parr, ut de Baronia sua de Kendale, et quod Edwardus Redman est frater et heres predicti Will'i, et etatis xxvj annorum."

Edward Redman was in the Commission of the Peace for Westmoreland, Wiltshire, and the West Riding of Yorkshire in 1483; in 1483 and 1484 he was a Commissioner to assess subsidies, &c., in the County of York; and with John Scrope, of Bolton, and others, was on a commission to arrest and imprison rebels in Devon and Cornwall.

In 1484 he was a Commissioner of Array for the County of Dorset; and in the same year he received a grant of the lordship or manor of Illubruar, co. Somerset (late of Thomas Arundell, Kt., &c.), "for his good services against the rebels," rendering to the king £6 yearly. (Patent Rolls).

In 1509 we find the following pardon:—H. VIII. Ao regni sui primo, pardonabat Edwardo Redmayn, fratri et he'd'i Will'i Redmayn militis; alias d'cus Edwardus Redmayn de Isell, in Com' Cumbr' ar', nuper vic' Cumbr.'; nuper de Levyns in Com' Westm'land ar'; nuper vic Som'set et Dorset; frater et heres Will'i Redmayn, militis de Harewod, in Com' Ebor' ar'. de London gentilman; nuper de Chideoke (Chideock) in Com' Dorset; (Ex pardonæ 'oe ip'a sub sigillo).

In 1509 Edward was High Sheriff of Cumberland. He married Elizabeth, daughter of Sir John Huddleston, of Millom Castle, and relict of Sir — Legh, who appears to have survived her husband about twenty years; for in 1530 appears a commission to Sir Richard Tempest, Sir Wm. Middleton, Roger Lassels, William Leigh, &c., to make inquisition of lands and heir of Lady Elizabeth Leigh, wife of Edward Redmayn. (Cal. to State Papers).

By his will made on Sept. 8th, 1510, Edward Redman directs that his body shall be buried "within the Church of Harwood, in a chapel called Redeman Chapel. He gives his widow a life interest in his estates, reserving xx^{li} yearly going out of lands and ten'ts in Harwood p'ish, which should grow to Richard Redeman, my sonne, and Elizab'h his wiffe, and to theires male of his body lawfully begotten." On his widow's death the estates to go to the said son Richard and his heirs male, and failing such issue to "Magdalene Redmayn, my daughter, and to theires male of her body, begotten by any of the sons of oon William Redeman, of twistleton" (Thornton); in default of such issue to "Jean Redeman, daughter to my sonne Herry Redeman, and to theires male of his body lawfully begotten by any that hight Redeman;" and in default of such issue to his nephew Thomas Preston and his heirs male.

This will shows Sir Edward's anxiety to preserve the family estates in Redman hands; as it is only after exhausting every apparent possibility of Redman successors that he devises the estates to his sister's son, Thomas Preston.

* He is described as a Knight in the Dodsworth MSS., but not in the original records I have consulted and here set forth.

It would thus appear that of the twelve brothers and sisters with whom Sir George Duckett credits Sir Edward, none of Redman name survived to 1510, the year of this will. If there had been others surviving, it is scarcely conceivable that no mention would have been made of them in the wills of Sir William and Edward.

Edward died in 1510, and the following inquisitions were taken a year later:—

INQUISITION taken at Kirkby, in Kendale, Co. Westmoreland, 14 Jany., 2 Hen. VIII., post mortem of Edward Redmayne. Jurors say that said Edward was seized of . . . acres of land, 40 acres of meadow, 100 acres of wood, 500 acres of pasture, 2,000 acres of furze and heath, and 40 solidates of rent in Leyvens, in county aforesaid; and of 40 messuages, 1,000 acres of land, 100 acres of meadow, 3,000 acres of furze in Lupton; of 2 messuages, 80 acres of land, 40 acres of meadow in Hinton; of 1 messuage, 40 acres of land, and 10 acres of meadow in Hencaster; and 1 messuage, 10 acres of land, 1½ acres of meadow in Henshill; and he enfeofed John Huddleston, Knight, and others of the same to the use of said Edward and (Lady) Elizabeth Leigh, then widow, for term of their lives. And Joan Redmayne, daughter of Henry Redmayne, son of said Edward Redmayn is his heir, and one year old and more; and said Edward died 27th Sepr. last past.

Eschætors' Inquisitions. (File 116, No. 3.)

INQUISITION taken at Wearby, Co. York, 14 Novr., 2 Hen. VIII., post mortem of Edward Redmayn. Jurors say that said Edward was seized of a moiety of the Castle and Manor of Harewood; of 2 messuages, 80 acres of land, 30 acres of meadow, and 6 acres of pasture in Harwood, Otley Pole, and Holynhall; and, by deed 1 Hen. 7, enfeofed John Huddleston, Knight, and others of the same to the use of said Edward and Elizabeth Lighe, then widow, and afterwards his wife; remainder to Richard, his son, and Elizabeth, his wife, and their heirs male, and in default to Magdalen Redmayn, daughter of said Edward, and heirs male by any son of Wm. Redmayn, of Twysleton. And said Edward died 27th Sepr. last past, and Joan Redmayn is cousin and heir of Edward, to wit, daughter of Henry Redmayn, son and heir of said Edward, and one year old and more.

(File 217, No. 18.)

INQUISITION taken at Harwood, Co. York, 10th June, 6 Hen. VIII. (1515), p.m. Edward Redmayn, late seized of the Manor of Hollyng Hall, and 2 messuages, 400 acres of land, etc., in Otley Poole, Hollyng Hall; and of 12 messuages, 100 acres of land, etc., in Harwode, and moiety of the Manor of Harwode; and in 1 Henry VIII. enfeofed John Huddleston Knt. and others of the same to the use of the said Edward, and of Elizabeth Leigh afterward his wife, etc. (File 218 No. 13.)

From the foregoing evidences, it will be seen that Edward Redman had the following issue:—

I. HENRY REDMAN, eldest son, died in his father's life time; married * Alice Pilkington, and had issue:—

JOAN REDMAN, daughter and heiress, and heiress of her grandfather, Edward Redman. She married † Marmaduke Gascoigne, son of Sir William Gascoigne, of Gawthorpe.

II. RICHARD REDMAN, of whom next. On him the Levens and Harewood estates were settled.

III. MAGDALENE REDMAN. In default of heirs male of her brother Richard, the estates were settled on her with remainder to heirs male of her body by any son of William Redmayn of Twysleton.

SIR RICHARD REDMAN.

Richard Redman, who succeeded his father in 1510, held the family estates for a period of thirty-four years. On May 27, 1530, there was a confirmation of charter of grant of warren, fair and market at Harewood to Henry Rither and Richard Redmayn; and in 1531-2 we find him in the Commission of Peace for Westmoreland. (State papers, Hy. VIII. F. and D., Vols. IV. and V.)

On 1 Octr., 1536, among the names of Knights, Esquires and Gentlemen who promised to serve the King, His Grace, in the company and at the leading of Thomas Lord D'Arcy, or his deputy, as he appoints upon an hour's warning, appears the name of Richard Redman, with a posse of 24 servants.

In the following year Richard Redmayn, Knight, appears on the Commission of Peace for Westmoreland, and in the same year the State papers, Hy. VIII., F. and D., Vol. XII., contain the following deposition by Richard Redmayne:—

"Ric. Redman showed him that divers of the parish of Heyshame came to his house, 14 Jany., to swear him to the Custom of Kendall, and he refused; also that on the 15th John Stanes, with some 200 persons, took Redman while hunting in Sizar Park and caused him to swear."

This summary proceeding appears to have had some connection with the "Pilgrimage of Grace."

Richard, or Sir Richard as he appears to have been, died in 1544, and the following are copies of the Inquisitions taken after his death:—

* Miscellanea Gen. and Her. N S. III., 442.

† Dodsworth MSS.; "Duchetiana"; Pedigree in Heralds College (I. C.B., 92-23).

INQUISITION taken at Appleby, Co. Westmoreland, the 14 Aug., 36 Hen. VIII. (1545) p.m. Richard Redmayn—Jurors say that said Richard was seized of the Manor of Lewyns in said Co., and of 40 messuages, 1,000 acres of land, 50 acres of meadow, 200 acres of pasture, 100 acres of wood, 40s. rent, 50 acres of moor, 80 acres of moss or turf, 40 acres of furze in Lewyns (Levens), Malynhall, Hyndcastle, Brythwaith, Synderbarow, Brygster, ffostrways, Lesgyll, Selsyde, and Kirkby-in-Kendal, and by indenture between him and Richard Layton, clerk, deceased, concerning a marriage between said Richard and Dorothy, daur. of Wm. Layton, Esqr., granted the aforesaid Manor and premises to said Richard Layton, John Tunstall, chaplain, and another to the use of aforesaid Dorothy. And said Richard R. . . was also seized of six messuages, 100 acres of land, etc., in Lupton and Hutton Ruff, and granted the same to Richard Fletcher and others to certain uses specified.

Richard Redmayn, of Harwood, grants to Sir Anthony Brown, the wardship and marriage of his son, Matthew; and being seized of a capital messuage and lands, etc., in Hutton Ruff, granted the same to Richard Layton and others, to the use of Francis Redmayne, Cuthbert Redmayne and Richard Redmayne for terms of their lives. And Matthew Redmayn is son and heir of said Richard, and 17 years old at his father's death. (File 137 No. 3.)

INQUISITION taken at Snayth, Co. York, 14 Aug. '36 Hen. VIII., p.m.—Richard Redman, who died seized of a moiety of the Castle and Manor of Harwood and advowsons of the churches, chantries, etc., belonging to the said castle. (File 241 29.)

According to Burn, Edward Redman was the last of the family to reside at Levens, and during his lifetime Levens was purchased by one of the Bellinghams, of . . . Redman, of Thornton-in-Lonsdale. As we have just seen that Richard Redman died (in 1544) seized of this manor, Burn's statement is obviously wrong. It was probably during the lifetime of his successor that both Levens and Harewood passed out of Redman hands, the former after a tenure of nearly four centuries, and the latter after a tenure a little more than half as long.

During these two hundred years the Redmans appear to have occupied the Castle of Harewood alternately with the Rythers; and during the whole of this time the two families seem to have lived in perfect harmony with each other, a fact which is eloquent of their mutual amiability.

Sir Richard Redman had the following issue:—

1. MATTHEW REDMAN, son and heir, of whom hereafter.
2. WILLIAM REDMAN,* perhaps the William mentioned as stated hereafter in conjunction with Matthew Redman in 1574-5 and 1600.

* The authority for these and the other particulars as to Sir Richard's children are "Miscellanea Gen. and Her." N.S. III., 442; Dodsworth MSS., "Duchetiana," page 209; and the Heralds College Pedigree (I. C.B., 92-93).

3. FRANCIS REDMAN,* evidently the Francis whose life estate is mentioned in his father's Westmoreland Inquisition p.m.
4. CUTHBERT REDMAN,* evidently the Cuthbert whose life estate is mentioned in his father's Inquisition p.m. He married* Elizabeth Wilstrop daughter of Sir Oswald Wilstrop of Wilstrop. She descended from the Lords Scrope of Bolton and Masham, and also from Cuthbert's distant kinsman, Thomas Redman of Bossall.
5. RICHARD REDMAN,* evidently the Richard whose life estate is mentioned in his father's Inquisition p.m.
1. ANN, married John Lambert, Esq. of Calton, in Craven. Their grandson was General John Lambert, the famous Parliamentary General. Ann's daughter Aveline married William Redmayne of Thornton in Lonsdale, and their son was Sir John Redmayne of Thornton Hall, whose estates were sequestrated in the troublous times of the Civil War.
2. GRACE, married Richard Travers, of Nateby (or Neatby), Lancashire.
3. MAUD, married Christopher Irton of Irton, Cumberland.
4. MARY, married Thomas Gargrave of Bolton in Craven.

MATTHEW REDMAN.

In 1548 Matthew Redman, who succeeded his father four years earlier, gave an account of his estate to the then Eschætor of Yorkshire, from which it appears that he was seized of the Manor of Levens, with lands in Malynghall, Hind Castle, Birthwaite and Kirby in Kendal, in Westmoreland, which he held of the King by Knight's service; a moiety of the Manor of Harewood and the Castle, there, lands in Selside, Layton, Keswick and Carleton, in Yorkshire, which he held of the King in capite. (Harleian M.SS. 4630 p. 484.)

In 1566 he was called upon—"ad ostendendum quo titulo tenet manerium de Harwod (Jones's Index to originalia).

Among the fines for the Tudor period are the following relating to Harewood:—

1551. Robert Atherton—Wm. Ryther Esqr., Humphrey Brown Kt. and Agnes, his wife and Matthew Redman Esqr.—pasture land and the moiety of the site and Castle of Harewood.
1560. Alexr. Ryshe worthe and Ed. Bolling, gents.—Matthew Redman Esq. and John Pleysington messe. with lands, Harewood, Wardeley, etc.

* The Authorities for these and the other particulars as to Sir Richard's children are "Miscellanea Gen. and Her." N.S. III. 442; Dodsworth MSS.; "Duchetiana" page 209; and the Heralds College Pedigree (I C.B., 92-23).

1562. Richard Appleyard and Geo. Bentley—Matthew Redman Esq.
—Manor of Harwood and 30 messes with lands in Harwood and Keswyke.
- 1570-1. Edward Mawde—Matthew Redman Esqr.—pasture land in Harewood.
1573. Wm. Redman, gentn.—Matthew Redman Esqr.—messes, cottes and lands in Harwood, Hetherycke, Werdeley, etc., also the moiety of the Manor of Harewood.
- 1574-5. James Ryther and William Plumpton—Matthew Redman Esqr. and William Redman, gentn.—ditto.

The Castle and Manor of Harewood and 30 messes and 30 cottes with lands and the frank pledge in Harwood, Bondgate, Newhall, Stocton, Lofthouse, Hetherwood, Gawthorpe, etc., etc.

A warrant against James Rither, father of Wm. Rither and g'father of Robert, Edith, Mary and Helena, and against Matthew and William Readman.

Matthew Redman married Bridget, daughter of Sir William Gascoigne, and this marriage was the last of three alliances between the Redmans, of Harewood, and the historic family of Gawthorpe; Matthew's first cousin, Joan, daughter of his uncle Henry, having married Marmaduke, 4th son of Sir William Gascoigne, and the first Sir Richard's wife having been, as we have seen, a daughter of the great Chief Justice, the most distinguished member of that family.

Beyond the particulars given above nothing appears to be known as to Matthew Redman, and the incomplete researches made by the earlier antiquaries leave us in ignorance as to the exact time and manner in which Harewood passed finally out of Redman hands. Whitaker in his Loidis et Elmete says:—How or when the property of the Redmaynes terminated at Harewood is uncertain.

Henry Redmayne, however, had a daughter and heir, Johanna, married to Marmaduke, fourth son of Sir William Gascoigne; and if the estate were unentailed, one moiety of the Manor of Harewood may have accrued to the Gascoignes by that match. If otherwise, it may have been sold to them by Matthew Redmayne, who also married a Gascoigne. The moiety of the Rythers must have been purchased by Gascoigne.

That the Manor of Harewood did not in fact accrue to the Gascoigne family through Joan Redmayne is clearly proved by the fact that, as we have seen, her uncle, Richard, died seized of it, and four years later it was in the possession of his son, Matthew, who was beyond question the last of the Redmans to hold the Manor and Castle of Harewood.

On this point Speight in his "Lower Wharfedale" says: "It is possible that Joan Gascoigne, daughter of Henry Redman, of Harewood, succeeded to a reversion of the Manor, and dying without issue, the property reverted to her uncle, Richard Redman, and from him to his son Matthew, the last of the Harewood Redmans. The Ryther moiety must have been sold either to the Gascoignes or Redmans. The estates eventually became united in Margaret, daughter and sole heiress of William Gascoigne, Esq."

It was through Margaret Gascoigne's marriage with Thomas Wentworth, Esq. of Wentworth Woodhouse, that Harewood was brought into the possession of the Wentworth family and of its most distinguished member, the ill-fated Earl of Strafford. From the Wentworths it passed successively to Sir John Cutler, a London merchant, to his daughter, the Countess of Radnor, and to her kinsman, John Boulter Esq., after whose death the Manor was sold to Henry Lascelles, Esq., ancestor of the Earl of Harewood, its present owner.

Before leaving Harewood it may be well to refer in more detail to the Redman Arms, which survived them in the Church and Castle there.

In the Church were: 1. The arms of Redman and Aldeburgh—Redman, gules, 3 cushions ermine, buttons and tassels, or; Aldeburgh, gules, a lion rampant, charged with a fleur de lys azure. 2. Redman. 3. Redman and Stapleton—argent, a lion rampant sable, langued and armed gules. 4. Redman.

And in the Castle: 5. Redman and Daíncourt—argent, a fesse dancette, between 8 billets, or; and, according to Glover, there was in the great chamber in Harwode Castle,—6. The Redman crest, out of a ducal coronet, a nag's head, gules.

Dr. William Redman, Bishop of Norwich, had a grant of arms in 1595. Gules, a crown argent, between four cushions ermine, tasselled, or; and the crest of Harewood, the ducal being changed into a mural crown.

Dr. Robert Redman, Chancellor of Norwich, bore, in 1551, the undifferenced arms, quartering with two others, a lion rampant, or (Aldeburgh); for crest he bore the red hand of the Thornton Redmans.

An undoubted member of the Redmayne Family of Harewood, whom at present it is impossible to place with accuracy in the pedigree, was Richard Redman, Bishop first of S. Asaph then of Exeter, and subsequently of Ely. From the armorial bearings recorded as appearing on his tomb, it is evident that he quartered the arms of Aldeburgh, and was therefore descended from the first Sir Richard Redman by Elizabeth Aldeburgh, his first wife.

As Sir Richard and Elizabeth were married about 1393, and as the Bishop died in 1505, we may safely assume that he was not their son, and seeing that he was an abbot in 1468, it is plain that he cannot have been their great-grandson, for their great-grandson Edward, second son of their direct heir, was born in 1456. The Bishop was therefore grandson of Sir Richard and Elizabeth, and though it is possible that he was son of Matthew (the fifth), who may have named two sons Richard, it is most unlikely, and I have little hesitation in placing him as son of that Richard, brother of Matthew, whom the first Sir Richard (husband of Elizabeth Aldeburgh) calls "my son" (filius meus) in his will.

Of course this argument is based upon the arms depicted on the Bishop's tomb, but there is no reason to doubt that they may be accepted as actually indicative of his descent.

Richard Redman was born in the Chapelry of Levens, educated at Cambridge, and became a Canon of the Premonstratensian Order in the Abbey of Shap; he was appointed Abbot and Visitor of the Order in 1478; held the Abbey in commendam with the Bishopric of St. Asaph for many years, and was consecrated Bishop of St. Asaph in 1468. (Le Neve's Fasti, i. 73.)

He restored St. Asaph Cathedral, and was compromised in the Rebellion of Lambert Simnel, the Pope adjudicating on the case. In 1492 he was appointed a Commissioner for treating with the Scots for peace, and in the following year was admitted to the Privy Council.

In 1496 he succeeded Dr. Oliver King as Bishop of Exeter, and five years later was removed to the See of Ely. He died at Ely House, Holborn, on Augt. 25th, 1505; and was buried in the Cathedral of his diocese where a magnificent altar tomb was erected to his memory. (Bentham's Ely, p. 183; Corpus Athenæ Cantab; Le Neve's Fasti; Rolls of Parliament, iv. 63, vi. 191, 238.) His tomb at Ely is described by Cole, M.S. xli. p. 113:—"On the south side of the altar tomb are three coats: (1) Gules, two keys endorsed and a sword run through them, all on saltire, or, the original arms of the See of Exeter; (2) in a larger shield, the arms of Bishop Redman. 1st and 4th, Gules, 3 cushions ermine, tassels, or, 2nd and 3rd, Gules, a lion rampant, argent; (3) Gules, three coronets, or, for the See of Ely. At the foot of the altar tomb a very small coat of Ely Bishopric. On the other side of it half Redman, viz.: three cushions and a lion rampant under them, impales Exeter as before; on the other side, half of Redman, as before, impales Ely.

The following is an abstract of the Bishop's will, which does not throw much light upon his pedigree. It is in Latin and dated 18th August, 1505:—

I bequeath my body to be buried in the Cathedral Church of Ely, near the high altar there, where I have appointed and elected my tomb; and I bequeath 100 li. for the expenses of my burial.

Item, for the expenses on the eighth day, 20 li.

For the expenses on the thirtieth day, 30 li.

Item, to each of the four orders of friars in Cambridge, 20s.

To the Prior of Ely, 20s., if he happens to perform the office of exequies and mass on the day of my burial.

To each monk of Ely present at my said exequies and mass, 6s. 3d.

Item, I bequeath to the fabric of the Cathedral Church of Ely, 100 marks.

Item, to be distributed among the poor at my burial, 20 li.

To the Abbess and Convent of Chartres, 40s.

To the Prioress and nuns of Sopham, 20s.

To the Prioress and nuns of Ykleton, 20s.

To the Prioress and nuns of Denhay, 20s.

Item, to the monastery of the Blessed Mary Magdalene of Heppa over which I now rule, all my stock there of oxen and horses, my household utensils, silver and gilt vessels and sums of money remaining there, upon condition that the abbot and convent shall suffer my executors to pay out of such sums of money what they shall think meet to distribute among my kinsfolk and servants, the residue then remaining to the said monastery.

I will that all my domestic or household servants shall receive one year's wages, and meat and drink for six months.

Item, I ordain my executors Master James Hobart, Knight, attorney of our lord the King, John and John, abbots of Wyndham and Terham in the diocese of Norwich, Master William Thornburgh, doctor of laws, Master Leonard Midelton, doctor of decrees and my nephew, Henry Dukett, my steward and kinsman, and Edward Chambré, my auditor of accounts of the Bishopric of Ely.

Proved 24 October, 1505 by John, Abbot of Wymondham, and Edward Chambré, with power reserved, etc. (P.C.C. Holgrave 38.)

HERIOTS, &c., ON THE WAKEFIELD MANOR ROLLS.

The present Calendar is ready for printing as far back as the 14th century, but the period of 1500—1563 is chosen to begin with, as being of more general interest to modern genealogists, who will thus be saved from going through the Rolls membrane by membrane, as there are no Docket Books or Indexes for this period. Practically all the entries of Heriots are here given, the few omitted being largely or entirely undecipherable.

HILILEIGH OR HILLILEE FAMILY (Vol. IV. p. 146).

Some years ago, by the kind permission of the Rector, I made some extracts from the Parish Registers of Halifax, including all the Hillilee, etc., baptisms from 1540 down to the end of 1580. I send them, thinking that they may be interesting to H. and other readers. I have given the exact forms of the name, though there is only one case in which the spelling is of importance, namely the baptism of a daughter of "George Halyly of Halifax" in 1571. Does this relate to a member of a distinct family, or is it a mere clerical error? In any case, I strongly suspect that the Hallileys who occur in the neighbourhood of Monk Fryston and Milford in the fifteenth and sixteenth centuries, were in reality Hillileys.

ARCHBISHOP'S TRANSCRIPTS OF PARISH REGISTERS AT YORK.

These transcripts commence in 1597, and in the first bundle (1597, 1598 and 1599) there are 276 transcripts for parishes within the old Diocese of York, which comprised practically the whole county of York, with the exception of the Archdeaconry of Richmond (the transcripts for which are at Ripon), and with the exception of the peculiar jurisdictions, the transcripts for most of which are in the Registry of the Dean and Chapter of York. The transcripts for Nottinghamshire are also in the Archbishop's Registry, but separate from those now under consideration. From the year 1600 to the year 1630, these transcripts have been recently numbered, and a list made, so that any parish can be found with comparative ease.

* The words in italics are in a different and apparently a later, ink.

† i.e., bastard.

The following list shows the number of transcripts for each year still extant in the bundles from 1600 to 1630:—

| Year. | No. of Transcripts. | Year. | No. of Transcripts. |
|-------|------------------------|-------|------------------------|
| 1600 | 276 | 1616 | 59 |
| 1601 | 262 | 1617 | 90 |
| 1602 | 142 | 1618 | 9 |
| 1603 | 156 | 1619 | 32 |
| 1604 | 187 | 1620 | 34 |
| 1605 | 183 | 1621 | 46 |
| 1606 | 141 | 1622 | 82 |
| 1607 | 141 | 1623 | 53 |
| 1608 | 121 | 1624 | 40 |
| 1609 | 147 | 1625 | 59 |
| 1610 | 143 | 1626 | 218 |
| 1611 | 78 | 1627 | 166 |
| 1612 | 61 | 1628 | 196 |
| 1613 | 46 | 1629 | 155 |
| 1614 | 63 | 1630 | 121 |
| 1615 | 61 | | |

After 1630 there is a bundle for each year down to 1642, and then no more till 1662, when the bundles begin to be divided into three parts, professing to be for the three Ridings, but this arrangement is so little to be depended on that it is almost worthless.

From 1662 the bundles grow immensely larger, being professedly arranged in Deaneries after about 1680, and after 1720 they are apparently something like complete in number. After 1813 transcripts practically ceased to be returned into the Registry.

The following notes of searches will give an idea as to the comparative chances of finding the earlier transcripts for any particular parishes:—

Kirkheaton. 1600-1642. Transcripts found for 28 years.

Gisborough. 1600-1631. Transcripts found for 18 years.

Wentworth. 1600-1631. Transcripts found for 15 years.

Penistone. 1600-1631. Transcripts found for 23 years.

Wath on Dearne. 1600-1631. Transcripts found for 16 years.

Rotherham. 1600-1631. Transcripts found for 21 years.

Leckonfield. 1690-1720. Transcripts found for every year except 1704.

Bagby. 1672-1680. Transcripts found for every year.

1690-1705. Transcripts for every year.

MARRIAGE BONDS OF THE DEAN AND CHAPTER OF YORK.

By T. B. Whytehead, Esq., Chapter Clerk, and Captain Sandwich, 8th Hussars.

The previous Series of Dean and Chapter's Marriage Bonds (completed in Vol. IV., page 33), comprises all that exist in York Minster for the several Vacancies of the See, that is to say, for the whole Diocese, in 1664, 1683-88, 1757, 1761, and 1776-7.

There are also bonds for two later vacancies, 1807-8 and 1847, which may be printed later.

The present Series comprises the Dean and Chapter's Bonds for their own peculiar jurisdiction, and that of most of their prebends, extending over some 70 or 80 parishes in the City of York and the Counties of York, Nottingham, and Lancaster. Some of the Prebendaries issued their own Marriage Licences, which may be printed later.

These Dean and Chapter Bonds are put up in bundles of various periods, the dates often overlapping each other, and the early ones have been calendared as they came to hand, a fact which will account for their appearing, now and then, out of their due order of date.

NOTES FROM THE PARISH REGISTER OF DENT.

By WM. CLEMENT KENDALL, ESQ.

The Register begins in 1611. Badly written but not badly preserved. Containing very few names out of immediate locality. There are as many as 750 entries of Hodgson. The earlier marriages often contain the same name more than once in a dozen entries.

Marriages in 1615.—Empson and Wood, Waddington and Willan, Murthwaite and Jackson, Willan and Fawcett, Greenwood and Hodgson, Grisedale and (illegible), Thompson and Fawcett, Illegible and Hodgson, Trotter and Linsey,* Hodgson and Mason—in all ten. Marriages in 1616.—Wm. Murthwaite and Jane Willan, Giles Willan and Agnes Corney, John Mason and Mason (Jane), John Mattison and Alice Mason, James Wine† and Mabel Mason, Thomas Linsey and Isabel Burton, Xtopher Waddington and Alice Burton—in all 7.

The Vols. are 1. 1611 to 1670.

2. 1671 to 1760.

3. 1760 to 1812.

IN VOL. I., 1611 to 1670.

BURIALS.

Willan, Burton, Willan, Sedgwick, Thistlethwaite, Alkuson, Roland Leake, Percivall, Haygarth, Willan, Hodgson, Willan, Harrison, Capstacke (Capstick), and Hodgson.

Jenet wife of Ottiwell Sedgwick, Sep., 1614.

There are also entries of burials of persons of the following names:—Lonsdale (many), Bland (many), Richmond—Rewcroft (one), Bradeley, Bradegate, Thornborow Waller, Baynes, Fothergill (1631.)

MARRIAGES.

Thomas Banes and Ellen Paradise, 1675; Thomas Crowdson and Lancaster, 1670; Nicholas Crowdson and Dorothy Winster, 1682; Ric. Thistlethwaite and Mary Redman, 1698; Joseph Redman and Agnes Slaveley, 1694; John Kendale and Elizabeth Burton, June, 1704; John Wood and Ellen Redman, 1709; Andrew Redman of Ingleton psh. and Elizabeth Knowles of Gigglesweek, 1714; Ric. Harper and Margaret Guy, 1728.

Sorragh (o), Punch (f), Noddals, Noddells, Noddles, and Powe, Powley. A few entries of Langstroth. These are in Vol. 1763 to 1812.

* Appears later as "Lindsey."

† Appears later as "Winne."

IN VOL. II. 1671-1760.

The following occur:—

Ashburner, Croudson (Crewdson).

Nicholas son of Nicholas Crowdson, 1691, baptized.

Sara d. of Thomas Stuart or Suart of Cockermouth, Leonard the son of Anthony Waite, 1718, Fearon, Ferron, Fearn, Fern, (? all the same name), Egging or Egiln, Gosling (numerous).

Marriages in 1742.—Hodgson and Willan, Murthwaite and Thistlethwaite, Ferron and Richardson, Greenbank and Batty (both common names, especially Greenbank), John Guy and Hanton—in all only 5 for the year.

Marriages in 1743.—Lupton and Lawrence, King of Austwich by Ingleboro and Lindsay of Dent, Mason and Wetherhead, Hardy and Wilkinson, Yeates and Gill, Walton and Bland, Talham and Walton, Staveley and Hanley (?), Pearson and Archer (?), Mason and Lindsay, John Croudson and Eleanor Greenbank, Edmundson and Brown, Pott and Burton, Tunstall and Metcalfe (a great many Metcalfes), Ferrow and Hodgson, Birkell and Proctor.

1778. Curious entries:—(Commonly called Little Anthony.)

(Commonly called Stiff: a girl.)

1791. Timothy son of Charles Much of Liverpool mariner and Elizabeth his wife, bap. . . .

Some entries of Tailforth and Taylforth. This family is now of Kirkby Lonsdale.

Dent is up a valley, 6 miles from Sedbergh, 9 from Kirkby Lonsdale, and quite out of the way; hence, I suppose, the constant inter-marriage. These Willans, Thistlethwaites, Greenbanks, and Hodgsons must have been all akin. Hence also the absence of strange names.

WASHINGTONS FROM KIRKBY LONSDALE REGISTER.

The first entry of the name of Washington is:—

Thomas Washington and Elizabeth Moore, 1 Nov., 1606.

Thomas Washington son of Thomas, Dec. 27, 1609.

LINCOLN MARRIAGE LICENCES.

This is an alphabetical Calendar (continued from Vol. V., page 44) in succession to those printed in Gibbons' "Lincoln Marriage Licences." It is compiled from several different sources, the following abbreviations being used to denote which source:—

Ael.—Liber Aelmer, Linc. Archid.

Act Book.—Consistory Court Act Books of Wills, &c.

D.—"Marriage Bonds (Divers Years)" in brown paper covers.

C.—Bishop Chaderton's Register.

F.—Faculty Book, 1611-1693.

Licences not marked with one of these abbreviations are from the Marriage Bonds (which the Editor arranged in portfolios, according to date, some years ago), supplemented by the allegations where forthcoming.

The pre-Reformation Marriage Dispensations in the Bishop's Registers are not included in this Series.

THE GIFFARDS.*

An account of the principal families of this surname forms the larger part of the latest volumes issued by the Wm. Salt Archæological Society (Staffordshire), and was begun with the intention of writing the history of the Giffards of Chillington. They are one of the primeval families of Staffordshire, having been seated at Chillington, near Wolverhampton, for nearly seven and a half centuries, and it is both remarkable and interesting that their history should now be written by one of the Wrottesleys of Wrottesley, who have held a neighbouring estate for almost exactly the same length of time as the Giffards have owned Chillington. The Giffards undoubtedly "came in with the Conqueror," and must have flourished exceedingly, for several important families of the name were in existence as early as the time of Henry III. This naturally causes confusion in the minds of genealogists, and General Wrottesley remarks that in the time of Henry III. and John, there were three contemporary Osbert Giffards; in the reign of Edward II. there were four contemporary John Giffards, and five in the reign of Edward III. Under the last-named King there were even two contemporary Edmund Giffards, each of whom had a wife Margaret.

Thus it will easily be imagined that once embarked on a history of the Giffards of Chillington, General Wrottesley soon found himself committed to giving sketches of the histories of no less than thirty Giffard families, or perhaps one should say, branches of the Giffard family. No one is better able to do this than General Wrottesley, under whose experienced guidance we find dry deeds and abstruse legal pleadings blossoming out into fascinating family chronicles, and it is no exaggeration to say that we have failed to find a single dull page in the whole of this carefully written book.

Three baronial families of Giffards were founded at, or immediately after, the Conquest. These were the Giffards Earls of Buckingham, the Giffards of Brimsfield, and the Giffards of Fonthill. From various indications it is clear that these three were nearly related, but the exact relationships are unknown.

General Wrottesley was formerly of opinion that the Giffards of Chillington were a branch of the Brimsfield Giffards, but he is now convinced that they were a branch of the Fonthill family. Their first undoubted ancestor was Peter Giffard, to whom by a deed

* "The Giffards, from the Conquest to the Present Time," by Major-General the Hon. George Wrottesley.

dated about 1170-1180 Peter Corbuson granted Chillington, styling him "the nephew of my wife."

Here we will offer General Wrottesley a clue which may possibly enable him to reduce Peter Giffard's ancestry to a certainty. It is well known that Peter Corbesun was grandson of that William "filius Corbutionis" who appears in Domesday Book as a tenant-in-chief in four counties. It can hardly be doubted that Robert filius Corbucionis, another Domesday tenant-in-chief, was brother of William; and when we find that in Norfolk "Gifart" holds Stokes and Fridetun under Robert (D.B. II. 258 and 260), and in Suffolk as "Gifardus" holds Sanfort (D.B. II. 426) under the same Robert, we feel that we probably have in these entries mention of Peter Giffard's direct or collateral ancestor.

We have done our readers no small service if we have attracted their attention to this scholarly and entertaining work. They can follow for themselves the exciting story of the perils through which the Giffards managed to hold on to their estates; how they finally threw off the suzerainty of the Bishop of Lichfield, and how in spite of the personal blandishments of Queen Elizabeth they kept to the ancient faith.

There is much personal interest in the adventures of that double-dyed traitor Gilbert Giffard, who deservedly ended his days in a Paris prison; while, in Charles Giffard, who had a large share in preserving King Charles's life after the battle of Worcester, we have an early example of something between a hanger-on of the Court and a company promoter.

The Giffards seem to have crossed the Border into Scotland, but to have left the northern parts of England severely alone, for among the thirty Giffard families of which General Wrottesley treats, only the Yorkshire Giffards of Hooton Paynel were seated north of the Trent. Of them, General Wrottesley can give only three descents, as follows:—John Giffard of Hutton Painell, father of John Giffard of Hutton Painell 12-38 Elizabeth, father of (1) John Gifford aged 47 in 38 Elizabeth, and (2) William Gifford who married Audrey Lyon. The third John married Elizabeth, daughter of Edward Bellingham, and in 3 James I. conveyed the estate to Sir Richard Hutton, Justice of the Common Pleas.

Perhaps some of our readers can add to this scanty account.

Returning for a moment to the Chillington Giffards, General Wrottesley shows how, having suffered severely for their loyalty in the Civil War, they had the sense to keep out of the risings of 1715 and 1745, with the result that the present Walter Thomas Courtenay Giffard still holds the estate of Chillington, which has descended to him through nineteen generations of his ancestors.

HUTTON, OF CARTMEL, CO. LANCASTER.

SOME NOTES upon the Huttons of the Parish of Cartmel, in Lancashire, and particularly upon the Huttons of Thorpensty, in the same Parish, whose Arms were—Gules on a fess or, between three cushions, ermine, two fleurs-de-lis of the first.

Where dates are given they are verified from the Parish Registers.

These Notes are based on the Lancashire Visitation, 1664—5, but amplified and extended, by dates and names, down to 1704—from the Registers.

The Visitation shows the William Hutton who married Agnes Buskill to have had a son named Richard, but no Edward, and two extra daughters, Elizabeth and Catherine, whereas the Registers show a son named Edward, but no Richard, and do not show these two daughters at all.

- I. HENRY HUTTON (a younger son of Hutton of Hutton, John, in Cumberland) first seated himself at Thorpensty. He married daughter of . . . Broughton of Broughton Tower, Lancashire, widow of William Knipe of Burplethwayte, Lancashire, and had issue.
 - II. WILLIAM HUTTON of Thorpensty, who married Jennett, daughter of . . . Bardsey of Bardsey, Lancashire. He had three sons, Richard, Thomas and Henry. The first and last named died sine prole.
 - III. THOMAS HUTTON married Helen, daughter of Oliver Middleton of Capleside, Westmoreland, and was buried January 28, 1601, having had issue William Hutton of Thorpensty, Gentleman, Thomas Hutton, one of the Auditors of Exchequer, tempore Jac; Elizabeth Hutton, wife of Thomas Rawlinson of Grisedale, Lancashire, and Helen Hutton, wife of Edward Peele of Plumpton-in-Furness, Lancashire.
 - IV. WILLIAM HUTTON married Agnes, daughter of Richard Buskill of Haversham Hall, Westmoreland, and died it is believed, in 1617, having had issue Thomas, born Feb. 17, 1586, buried June 23rd, 1642; Richard and Nicholas, who was born March 15, 1594, all three dying sine prole; Edward, born March 4, 1588; Frances, born January 1, 1585, wife of Thomas Wilson of Hundow, Westmoreland; Helen, born Oct. 29, 1591, wife of Thomas Pearson of Poolbank, Westmoreland; Mary, born Sept. 6, 1596, ob. cæl; Dorothy, born April 25, 1597, wife of Ed. Bacchus of Averland, Westmoreland; Elizabeth died unmarried; Catherine, wife of John Wells of Stanke-in-Furness; and

- V. GEORGE HUTTON, born on 13th and baptised on 16th October, 1603, married on 7th January, 1642, to Elizabeth, daughter of William Rawlinson of Greenhead, Lancashire, widow of John Swyneson, or Swainson, of Cartmel Fell, and buried February 18, 1678, having had issue, Agnes baptised on Nov. 19, 1643; Mary baptised Decr. 5, 1654; and
- VI. WILLIAM HUTTON, who was buried June 5, 1714 (aged, it is believed, about 66), having had issue, George, baptised January 29, 1673; Thomas, baptised February 5, 1677, and buried April 26, 1687; Elizabeth, baptised Sept. 25, 1684, and buried Decr. 12, 1694; Agnes, baptised May 27, 1697; Dorothy, baptised August 15, 1699; and John baptised July 12, 1704.

The following extracts from Cartmill Parish Register can only conjecturally (if at all) be connected with the foregoing continuous pedigree:—

1721. Decr. 13. William Hutton, son of Richard of Thorpensty, Gentleman, bapt.
1722. July 31. Richard Hutton of Thorpensty, Gentleman, buried.
1728. Dec. 18. Jennet Hutton, daughter of Thomas of Flookburgh, bapt.
1731. May 23. Alice Hutton, daughter of Thomas of Flookburgh, bapt.
1734. Mar. 19. Margaret Hutton, daughter of William of Mireside, bapt.
1736. June 4. Thomas Hutton of Flookburgh, buried.
1737. Oct. 13. Ellen Hutton, daughter of William of Mireside, bapt.
1739. Mar. 23. William Hutton, son of William of Mireside, bapt.
1740. Oct. 17. Henry Bradley and Alice Hutton, both of Flookburgh, married.
1743. May 1. Thomas, son of William Hutton of Flookburgh, bapt.
1743. Nov. 11. Thomas, son of William Hutton of Flookburgh, buried.
1746. June 22. Mary, daughter of William Hutton of Flookburgh, bapt.

- 1746. March 15. Thomas, son of George Hutton of Kentsbank, bapt.
- 1750. Oct. 27. John Hutton, son of William of Daughtern, buried.
- 1754. Oct. 20. Anne Hutton, daughter of William of Daughtern, bapt.
- 1754. Dec 8. Agnes Hutton, daughter of Nicholas of Rosthwaite, bapt.
- 1755. Dec. 9. John Hutton of Flookburgh, buried.
- 1760. Dec. 23. Joseph Drinkelt and Margaret Hutton, both of Cartmel Parish, married.
- 1761. May 11. James Nicholson of Penrith Parish and Ellen Hutton of Cartmel Parish, married.
- 1763. May 20. Jane Hutton from Kirby Lonsdale, widow, formerly of Thorpensty, buried.
- 1767. Oct. 1. Isaac Bowerbank of Colton Parish and Eleanor Hutton of Cartmel Parish, married.
- 1781. Dec. 27. John Hutton and Ann Withers, married.
- 1784. April 25. Agnes, daughter of John Hutton of Nether Newton, bapt.
- 1787. Feby. 15. John, son of John Hutton of Nether Newton, bapt.
- 1793. May 5. Mary, daughter of John Hutton of Field Broughton, bapt.
- 1806. Nov. 23. Anne, wife of John Hutton of Templand, farmer, buried.
- 1818. July 5. Elizabeth, daughter of John and Elizabeth Hutton of Barber Green, farmer, bapt.
- 1820. Sep. 17. James, son of John and Elizabeth Hutton of Barber Green, farmer, bapt.
- 1825. June 5. William, son of John and Elizabeth Hutton of Kentsbank, farmer, bapt.

The compiler of these notes hopes that some reader of THE NORTHERN GENEALOGIST will be able to throw light upon them and contribute to it further information upon male branches of the Hutton family in Lancashire and Westmoreland, at least, as far back as the beginning of the 18th century, bearing the foregoing or similar arms, or the arms following, viz.:—Argent, on a fess sable, three bucks' heads caboshed, or, Crest—Issuant from a tower ppr. three arrows sable.

EDITOR'S NOTE.

I am so constantly asked the same questions as to various sources of genealogical information which are familiar to the expert, but the very existence of which seems to be unknown to many amateur genealogists, that it has occurred to me that some printed notes as to these would save my readers and myself an immense amount of time and trouble.

In this connection I give, in the present number of this Magazine, some notes on the exceedingly valuable series of Transcripts of Parish Registers in the Registry of the Archbishop of York.

It will scarcely be credited that there are enthusiastic genealogists who have been brought to a dead stop in their researches by the want of original Church Registers, and who have never heard of these transcripts.

There are, of course, besides these, many peculiar jurisdictions of which a knowledge is absolutely necessary in order to avoid waste of time and money in searching, just as it is in the case of Wills and Marriage Bonds; and of these peculiar jurisdictions I hope to give some account in future numbers.

Dr. Marshall's invaluable little book on Ancient Courts of Probate has placed these peculiars, as regards wills, under the hand of the expert, but I constantly meet with amateurs, baffled by the failure of ordinary sources, and eager for these special sources, who have not the faintest idea which way to turn.

After wills, parish registers and marriage bonds (and sometimes very much in advance of these), some of the most valuable sources of genealogical information are Manor Rolls, and most of these, as regards dates, places of deposit and degrees of accessibility are, to the ordinary amateur searcher, a sealed book.

Then again, there are the Archbishop's Registers at York, abounding with wills and other genealogical information, which are practically unsearchable for want of indexes. There are forty huge volumes of these, and a fee of a guinea per day is charged for allowing them to be searched; but some of them contain no wills, some of them have indexes in the middle of the volume and many have no indexes at all, so that for want of knowing these things one may easily waste days in finding out the method of searching at all.

But it is needless to multiply instances. It may perhaps be thought by some that it is foolish to give away what are called "trade secrets," acquired bit by bit in the course of years of research, but this is not my opinion, and it will give me real pleasure if by such notes as I possess, or can induce my still more experienced friends to give, any of my readers find their paths made smoother in those researches with which I have so much sympathy.

The present number contains no MURGATROYD NOTES, as had been intended, but we have found several members of the family interested in the subject, and hope presently to have access to at least two Murgatroyd Pedigrees, one of which we are informed goes back to a very early date indeed.

CORRESPONDENCE.

To the Editor of THE NORTHERN GENEALOGIST.

SIR,—I shall be very grateful for any information concerning the descent of Mr. John Pullein of Easington, Cleveland. The registers show that he had children baptised as follows:—

- 1654. Feb. Katharine, dau. of Mr. John Pullon.
- 1656. June 19. Langley, son of Mr. John Pulleyn.
- 1659. Aug. 30. John, son of Mr. John Pulleyn.
- 1661. April 9. Samuel, son of Mr. John Pullein, gent.
- 1662. July 24. Ruth, dau. of Mr. John Pullein.
- 1663. July 9. Richard, son of Mr. John Pullein.

The late Mr. Geo. Waddington of Grosmont judged Mr. John Pullein to have "been an official of the Commonwealth appointed to collect the dues on the alum then being made at Boulby in that parish." I do not know on what he based this opinion.

I am anxious to know if John Pullein's descent can be traced to the unknown "Pulleyn—Gentl." whose coat of arms is given in the Elizabethan Roll of Northern Heraldry that is bound up with Tong's Yorks. Visitation of 1530.

"Baliwike of Langbaugh-cum-Whitbistrand. Pulleyn-Gentl.—Az. between 6 lozenges arg. each charged with an escallop sa., a bend or, charged with 3 escallops of the third."

I am unable to identify the bearer of these arms; but as the old wapontake of Langbaugh is synonymous with Cleveland, it seems not improbable that John Pullein, gent. of Easington, Cleveland, may have sprung from the family indicated.

The name Langley is also found in the Hampsthwaite registers among children of a Samuel Pullein. Baptisms—

1689. March 27. Jane, dau. of Samuel Pullein.

1691. May 7. Langley, son of Samuel Pullein.

1693. May 2. Elizabeth, dau. of Samuel Pullein.

1696. March 29. Alice, dau. of Samuel Pullein.

It is possible that the father of this second Langley may have been the Samuel born at Easington in 1661. He was a witness to the will of my great-great-great-great-grandfather, Robert Pullein of Birstwith, in Feb., 1684-5, but I have as yet no proof of his being a relative.

Yours faithfully,

CATHARINE PULLEIN,
Y.A.S.^c Y.P.R.S.^v

THE MIDDLEMORES OF TYNDALE.

There is now resident in Carlisle a family in somewhat poor circumstances, bearing the surname of Middlemore, whose presence so far north of Warwickshire and Worcestershire has been a puzzle to the authors of the elaborate "History of the Middlemore Family," lately printed for private circulation. It would certainly, however, appear from the following note that the Middlemores were a family of some importance on the Northern Borders as early as Henry the Eighth's time; and I shall be grateful for any information throwing light upon the history of these North Country bearers of a distinctly Midland surname.

LETTERS, PATENT FOREIGN AND DOMESTIC OF HENRY VIII. (Vol. XVIII., part I., 1543). No. 153. A letter from Lisle to Suffolk dated from Alnwick 12 Feb. . . .

"The burning at Capthetune, on South Tyne, was by Eylwilles Nixsons and Crosyers brought in by the two outlawed Charletons. A widow, one of the Mydelmors of Tyndale, sent to her kinsfolk in Tyndale to rescue her goods, and a great fray ensued, in which many were hurt on both sides, so that Lythersdale and Tyndale, which have been such friends, are like to be at feud.

MURGATROYD, OF MURGATROYD, ETC.

I have received from various sources, especially from our Editor and from Mr. B. Murgatroyd of Crouch Hill, a considerable number of notes relating to this family. They extend over five or six centuries, but I think that it will be of most interest if I begin by giving a complete series of abstracts of all the Murgatroyd wills whose probate is calendared at York in the eighteenth century. For this my readers have chiefly to thank Mr. Gibbons.

EDITOR'S NOTES.

I am very glad to see announced for publication another learned work on "Anglo-Saxon Mythology with some observations on Beowulf," by my friend Mr. A. H. Inman, whose notes on Domesday caused some stir two years ago.

These subjects are somewhat beyond the comprehension of the ordinary English genealogist, but Mr. Inman's great ability and the earnestness of his research in subjects too abstruse to be popular deserve our unqualified admiration.

INGOLDMELLS COURT ROLLS, CO. LINCOLN.

We welcome with much pleasure the issue to subscribers of this valuable book by the careful hand of the Rev. W. O. Massingberd, author of "A History of Ormsby."

The Rolls calendared, or rather translated, extend from 1291 to 1578, and Mr. Massingberd has added a most valuable introduction and notes.

The subscription is 15s., only 150 copies are printed, and none will be sold at a lower price. Subscribers' names will be received by the Editor himself—the Rev. W. O. Massingberd, Ormsby Rectory, Alford, Lincolnshire.

WAKEFIELD MANOR ROLLS.

By the courtesy of the Editor of the Saturday Review we are enabled to reprint an article on this Manor Court, which will, we think, be of great interest to our readers, taken in connection with the Notes of Heriots which we are issuing, and will well justify the breach of our rule not to reproduce anything already in print.

A. G.

A GREAT COURT LEET.

In the public places of certain Yorkshire towns, which lie within the precinct and ancient soke of the manor of Wakefield, there appears, in the April and October of each year, a printed bill, advertising the inhabitants of the surrounding townships that, on a particular day and at a place named, "the Great Court Leet of our Sovereign Lady the Queen, with the view of frankpledge and the tourn," will be holden, at which they will be required to answer their "call or essoign," under pain of being amerced; and that "the Great Court Baron" of the lord of the manor will likewise be holden, whereat, under the same penalty, the freeholders and copyholders must also answer their call or essoign. If the curious student of ancient legal customs should attend the ceremonial, he will not be greatly impressed by it, though it will suggest many things to him. When the thirteen jurymen, seated on a bench in a small, crowded room, have been sworn in—a proceeding they are often in an unseemly haste to get over—the Manor Bailiff, bearing a wand, and having a roll in his hand, will advance towards those assembled, and cry out in a loud voice:—"O yes! O yes! O yes! (Oyez). All manner of persons who owe suit and service to the Great Court Leet of our Sovereign Lady the Queen; and also to the Great Court Baron of Sackville George, Lord Conyers, Baron Conyers, Lord of the Manor of Wakefield, holden here this day: Let them come forward and give their attendance, and they shall be heard!" Whereupon it may be presented—as on an occasion we have in memory—of a certain Badger that he has meted out provisions to his customers from an unjust scale—to wit, from one to which flour, from damp or other cause, has adhered in cakes, and has, in fact, to all purposes, become part of the scale itself. This circumstance, at the Court Leet we allude to, having been credibly attested, the Court-Bailiff amerced the gentleman in question in six pounds sterling, who, being greatly angered thereat, demanded, with loud voice, if this was English law he was tried by—he little knew how very English it was. The jury of the Court Leet, by ancient custom, have the right of “affearing” or reducing the amerciaments by one half; but in this case they declined, whispering amongst themselves, somewhat gleefully it must be confessed, that the badger was “a daicon an’ a local praicher.” The next presentment was of a different order; it was alleged that a poor itinerant greengrocer, in ignorance rather than of illegal purpose prepense, had made himself certain leaden weights, which indeed he averred outweighed the standard; but he, too, was amerced—in thirty-five shillings, which was affeered by the jury to one-half. There were many other cases of those who had used unlawful weights, or measures not officially stamped, and when these had been punished by fine, for the Leet cannot imprison, the criminal business concluded, and the Court Baron began—for, in these days, the jurisdiction of the Leet extends to weights, scales, and measures only. But the jurors, as representatives of the townships, are still accustomed to elect constables, by-law-men, pinders, presenters, and other officers of the Court, thus exercising the privileges of the old mark-moot-men.

These proceedings are plain and unpretentious enough, and we may well believe that when the “Pinder of Wakefield” was appointed at just such a Court as this—and there are several Robin Hoods named in the manor rolls—the doings were more weighty and far more picturesque. Yet it is worth noting that the simple duties of a country Leet in these days are very typical of the original purpose of what is certainly the oldest Court in the country. However, as has been shown in some previous articles on the English Manor, the “mark-moot” may have been dwelt on unduly. When the township came under the jurisdiction of a lord—Saxon first and Norman afterwards—it developed into a manor, and the profits of it were his. If the township presented that the miller had taken too much mulcture, or the baker put alum in his bread, the lord pocketed the penalty; and, when the lord’s steward adjudged the fine, the jury had a say in the matter; thus, if he assessed it too high, they reduced it by half. The Normans consolidated the system, and the Court was a royal court of justice in the hands of a subject, with all the duties of a sheriff’s tourn; but still it was held solely for the benefit of the people, who had their share in its jurisdiction, unlike the Court Baron, which was for the good of the lord. When, after the Conquest, the system of frankpledge—the associating of ten men together as sureties one for another—was introduced, or rather confirmed, the Court Leet had the view of the frankpledge—the seeing whether the associations were maintained; and in several Yorkshire manors, as a nominal duty, it has it yet.

In that charmingly dull book anent Courts Leet and Baron, "writt heretofore in French by the Methodically Learned John Kitchin, of Grey's-Inn, esq.," one may see how varied and extensive were the duties of the Leet in Elizabethan times. Kitchin enters on his work in no light spirit, telling us that we ought first to consider why the king was ordained of God, for what purpose the law was ordained, and how very ancient and honourable these Courts be; and he exhorts the jury to justice, telling them that "the lips of a liar are an abomination to the Lord." "Now you ought to consider," he goes on, "that you which are of the jury are chosen in such manner as the angels of God are at the last day of judgment of man;" and, in a "Glass for the Steward," he instructs that official in the ways of equity and prudence. It is perfectly clear that the Court Leet in its origin was a representative assembly for the public weal, and could punish offenders against society for whom the law has few or no terrors in these days. Thus it could seize upon "common barrators"—men who went about amongst the people sowing dissension and setting them one against another; who spread calumnies, rumours, and reports; and who lived by getting up vexatious lawsuits—and could clap them in the stocks. It could lay hold of and punish with fine all eavesdroppers, such as hung listening at doors and windows, or followed people to hear their discourse, and then went about the village tattling, as busybodies will, their mischievous tales. It could carry off the virago, the scold, and the shouting female of the streets, and punish her with the tumbrel or the ducking-stool. The Leet had a particular control over tradesmen who did injustice to their customers by using unjust weights and measures—almost the sole relic of its jurisdiction now—but it controlled them in other matters also. Thus it would lay the "assize of bread" and ordain the price at which the baker should sell his loaves and the weights of which they should be made, and it would see that he put no alum therein; it had an ale-taster who visited the hostels and breweries to see that the ale was wholesome and good; and, in a similar way, it had an eye on other vendors of produce. If any one forestalled the market, or spread rumours to raise prices, or made provisions scarce, heavy was his punishment indeed. If a butcher conspired with others to sell meat at a particular price—alas! for the days of old—he was fined £10 for the first offence, £20 for the second, and £40 for the third, and was held as an infamous man, and was discredited thenceforth in courts of justice. In other directions the Court Leet had jurisdiction in sumptuary matters, and prescribed the apparel for men of various conditions; it saw that they shot well with the long-bow; it kept the public peace, and laid hands on rioters, tipplers in alehouses, and night-prowlers; and it had control of waifs and strays. It could not, however, usually punish, except with pecuniary fines, though it had the tumbrel, for the stocks were looked upon as an implement of detention. The "Methodically Learned Kitchin" is careful to tell us that it could inquire into and present many offences which were handed over to other Courts to punish. But the making of by-laws for the repair of roads and bridges and other such matters was an important function.

The Manor of Wakefield, whose Leet has led us to make these remarks, is an excellent example of such a jurisdiction, and it has been an important manor too, for its precincts are almost equal in extent to a county. Its length is fully thirty miles, and it comprises considerably more than a hundred towns, villages, and hamlets, and eleven large north-country parishes, or parts of parishes, one of them, that of Halifax, one of the largest in England. Its Courts have been held without intermission from Norman times, and earlier no doubt, to the present day, and the court-rolls, from the year 1272 to 1885, with no very important breaks, are carefully preserved in a special place, on iron racks, in its capital town of Wakefield still. A cursory inspection of these valuable muniments will show that the manor exercised most of the rights indicated by Kitchin. Thus in 1298 it gave a licence to build a bakehouse; in 1311 it amerced a man for selling bread without weighing it; a little later (1314) a man was fined for selling ale without the taster's permission, and again (1324) a number of people suffered for selling flour mixed with dust. Later, in 1452 and 1463, the millers were punished for taking excessive mulcture; in 1508 two men were fined for not allowing the taster to judge the quality of their ale, and in 1515 there was a punishment of one who refused to sell beer to the poor. With regard to the peace of the male community, it may be said that in 1312 a woman was amerced for drawing blood with her nails, and that a scold was presented at the court in 1495. In 1308 the Leet made a by-law that the Abbot of Fountains should repair Bradley Bridge; and six years later he was distrained on and thirteen horses taken for neglecting to do so, and he was again fined in 1336. Other interesting by-laws made by the Leet were, in 1450, that there should be no "playes at speres" after nine in the evening, and, in 1476, that no inhabitants of Halifax parish should carry an unreasonable weapon, such as a sword, an axe, a bill, or a spear—both evidences of very troublous times. In these matters we see the Leet acting for the good of the community in punishing those who offended it; but, when the lords of the manor, the Earls of Warren—of whom we have not space to speak here—were wronged, it punished the offenders also. Thus, before the year 1300, it dealt with certain crimes in the lord's forest of Sowerbyshire in the parish of Halifax, where one of the foresters was wounded, and the offenders were fined and compelled to find sureties in case the man died before the Earl arrived; and there were also attachments for other offences in the forest. Again, in 1326 the Leet decided that the Prior of Lewes, in Sussex, who held the "sub-manor" of Halifax, was bound to entertain the steward and bailiffs of Earl Warren, when they came twice a year to attend the court, and he was to find necessities for them and their horses as long as they stayed. These are but stray typical instances taken from the Wakefield rolls, but they illustrate from actual examples the nature of the work of the Court Leet. Such of the ancient duties of the Leet as are not extinct have now passed, with but trifling exceptions, to other tribunals; yet the ancient forms survive in some places as pleasant and interesting memorials of local government and primitive jurisprudence.

HERIOTS, &c., ON THE WAKEFIELD MANOR ROLLS.

The present Calendar is ready for printing as far back as the 14th century, but the period of 1500—1563 is chosen to begin with, as being of more general interest to modern genealogists, who will thus be saved from going through the Rolls membrane by membrane, as there are no Docket Books or Indexes for this period. Practically all the entries of Heriots are here given, the few omitted being largely or entirely undecipherable.

THE GIFFARD FAMILY. (See Vol. V. p. 94.)

General Wrottesley, the author of the work reviewed in a former number of this magazine, writes as follows:—" . . . It requires more local knowledge than I possess of Norfolk and Suffolk to explore the devolution of the Giffard fees; but speaking from memory, on looking over those two counties' histories, I could only make out that 'Gifart' stood for Walter Giffard the first Earl, and the 'Testa de Nevill' names no Giffard in either of those counties. I therefore concluded that these Giffard fees had been subinfeuded or perhaps forfeited at the time that Robert fitz Corbuson was expelled. Respecting the attitude of the Chillington Giffards in 1745, I have always heard that Chillington was promptly occupied by a detachment of dragoons. That saved the family from committing themselves when Charles Edward reached Derby. The rebellion of 1715 stopped at the northern counties, but my great-grandfather Collingwood, the father of Mrs. Giffard of Chillington, was hanged at Carlisle for it. The other day I came across the following couplet, written by Defoe, under a pseudonym. It occurs in an old Jacobite song:—

'To Cuthbert, Carr and Collingwood, to Shafto and to Hall,
And every gallant generous heart that for King James did fall.'

MARRIAGE BONDS OF THE DEAN AND CHAPTER OF YORK.

By T. B. Whytehead, Esq., Chapter Clerk, and Captain Sandwith, 8th Hussars.

The previous Series of Dean and Chapter's Marriage Bonds (completed in Vol. IV., page 33), comprises all that exist in York Minster for the several Vacancies of the See, that is to say, for the whole Diocese, in 1664, 1683-88, 1757, 1761, and 1776-7.

There are also bonds for two later vacancies, 1807-8 and 1847, which may be printed later.

The present Series comprises the Dean and Chapter's Bonds for their own peculiar jurisdiction, and that of most of their prebends, extending over some 70 or 80 parishes in the City of York and the Counties of York, Nottingham, and Lancaster. Some of the Prebendaries issued their own Marriage Licences, which may be printed later.

These Dean and Chapter Bonds are put up in bundles of various periods, the dates often overlapping each other, and the early ones have been calendared as they came to hand, a fact which will account for their appearing, now and then, out of their due order of date.

LINCOLN MARRIAGE LICENCES.

This is an alphabetical Calendar (continued from Vol. V., page 44) in succession to those printed in Gibbons' "Lincoln Marriage Licences." It is compiled from several different sources, the following abbreviations being used to denote which source :—

Ael.—Liber Aelmer, Linc. Archid.

Act Book.—Consistory Court Act Books of Wills, &c.

D.—"Marriage Bonds (Divers Years)" in brown paper covers.

C.—Bishop Chaderton's Register.

F.—Faculty Book, 1611-1693.

Licences not marked with one of these abbreviations are from the Marriage Bonds (which the Editor arranged in portfolios, according to date, some years ago), supplemented by the allegations where forthcoming.

The pre-Reformation Marriage Dispensations in the Bishop's Registers are not included in this Series.
